BURGLAR SUSPECT TAKEN IN BATTLE

John J. Daly of No. 1 Minton street, Jamaica Plain, is a light sleeper, which is why Philip Dalton was held today for the Grand Jury on a charge of breaking and entering.

Daly awoke when he heard a footstep on the piazza. He saw Dalton climb in through a window. He leaped from his bed and grappled. Other persons in the house became hysterical as the two men threshed around in a hall and screamed. Patrolman Peter Ogisky heard the cries and arrived as Dalton was getting the better of the fight. He slipped handcuffs on Dalton, who lives on Brinton street, Roxbury.

GIRLS HURT AS AUTO IS UPSET

Laura Harrison, nineteen years old, of No. 6 Hollis street, Dorchester, and Matilda Miller, twenty-two years old, of No. 15 Wilcox street, Dorchester, were injured today when the automobile they were riding in turned turtle opposite Engine 26 in Dorchester. The girls were taken into the engine house and treated by a nearby physician. They were later removed to their homes in a police ambulance. William A. Brook of No. 134 March street, driver of the car, was uninjured.

BROADWAY TO BE DRY AS SAHARA

New York, April 2.—Broadway will be as dry as Sahara and even a camel will feel at home there, said Palmer Canfield, State prohibition director, in announcing today that twenty-one more cabarets and restaurants in the White Light district would shortly be closed.

He said the places had failed to heed warnings to cease selling liquor.

EXPLOSION DAMAGES MALDEN HOSPITAL

Three women attendants were thrown from their beds and several windows were broken by an explosion today in the Maternity Hospital, Maine and Appleton streets, Malden. The copper water-heating tank in the basement blew up.

The women were: Miss Lena M. Plummer, matron; Miss Ruth Wheeler, night supervisor, and Miss Marguerite Small, a nurse. They were asleep when the explosion rocked their room and tossed them to the floor.

Thomas J. Monjeau of No. 23 Appleton street, a plumber, rushed to the hospital and turned the water off.

Damage was estimated at $1,000.

GOVERNOR REOPENS WARD CASE

Persistence of Mother of Peters, the Slain Haverhill Youth, Is Rewarded

Albany, N. Y., April 2.—Acting under orders from Governor Smith, Attorney-General Sherman today reopened investigation of the murder of Clarence Peters, nineteen-year-old former bluejacket of Haverhill, Mass., by Walter S. Ward, millionaire vice-president of the Ward Baking Company, at White Plains, N. Y., last May.

Among the half-dozen witnesses summoned were the parents of the dead boy, Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge Peters, of Grove street, Haverhill. Mrs. Peters is reported by her persistent plans to have caused the reopening of the inquiry.

Mr. and Mrs. Peters declare they have evidence proving their son, Clarence, went to New York on the invitation of Ward, who gave him money and that he never returned from that visit.

Several witnesses in Haverhill claim they saw Ward with Peters in that city a month before the murder.

$75,000 PLOT CHARGED.

One of these witnesses, William Smith, proprietor of a cafe, says Peters told him the fashionably dressed stranger was Ward, who had given him a new suit and a roll of bills and had urged him to go to New York, where he would furnish him with an apartment and "put him in line to make money."

Ward, his wife and mother-in-law, Mrs. Curtis, were out of the jurisdiction when the case was reopened here. Ward has admitted he killed Peters.

He said Peters and two companions, a young fellow called Charlie Ross, and another called "Jack," tried to blackmail him and that when they attacked him he shot Peters in self-defence. Ward claimed nine shots were exchanged in the pistol fight.

He did not come forward for six days. Peters was identified meanwhile from photographs and finger prints in the navy files. A navy blouse indicated to the authorities that he had been a bluejacket.

The feature that is puzzling the State authorities in New York is what Ward was being blackmailed for. Ward has never admitted that important feature of the case nor has his father or other relatives.

Ward claimed the young man had demanded $75,000 and that he had driven in his car with Peters to

EJECTED BY STAR, TRIES SUICIDE

Love-Maddened Admirer of Film Idol Found Hiding in Latter's Bedroom

Hollywood, Cal., April 2.—A girl fifteen years of age, and claiming acquaintance with General Francisco Serrano, Mexican Minister of War, and Pedro J. Aimada, inspector-general of police in Mexico City, has interested police surgeons here with declarations of having swallowed poison after having been ejected from Charley Chaplin's bedroom.

She gave the name of Mrs. Marina Vega, of Mexico City. While no traces of poison were found, the movie comedian, in whose automobile she was taken to the Receiving Hospital for treatment, told of several entrances effected to his house through ruses.

INFATUATED WITH STAR.

Her story of infatuation with the comedian through seeing his pictures in Mexico City, and unsuccessful attempts to see him at the studio, followered by gaining entrance to his residence while he was out and remaining in his bedroom until discovered there by a Japanese for the heavy loss of stockholders' savings. Promoters insist that there is plenty of high-grade ore to be mined and that the properties are promising, if properly developed and managed.

Just now Boston-Montana is enmeshed in litigation. Charles S. Moffley of Helena, Mont., and Isidore H. Brand of New York were recently appointed ancillary receivers of the Boston-Montana Corporation, the Boston & Montana Milling & Power Company, the Montana Southern Railway Company and the Boston & Montana Development Company.

Judge Morton of Superior Court, Boston, refused to enjoin the New England Trust Company from instituting proceedings to foreclose a $5,000,000 bond issue mortgage made by the Boston-Montana Corporation. The American Discount Corporation holds $3,500,000 of this bond issue, the controlling interest.

SPIRITED HEARINGS.

Last January, William J. Bursaw, chairman of the stockholders' protective committee, brought injunction proceedings against the American Discount Corporation, claiming that the majority bonds held by that corporation had been improperly acquired. W. Robert Montgomery was named as a co-defendant.

Judge Wait appointed Charles C Mellen of the Scollay Building to sit as arbiter. Spirited hearings have been held. They are not completed. The officials of the American Discount Corporation claim that the $3,500,000 worth of bonds held by them were acquired in the regular banking manner and that they will gladly surrender them when obligations are paid.

DROPS TO 20 CENTS.

Boston-Montana sold on the curb in Boston on Saturday around twenty-eight cents, and on the New York curb around twenty cents. It sold for $4.75 when first issued. The corporation was capitalized at $25,000,000. The par value was $5 a share. Two years ago the par value was advanced to $25 and one-half the stock was held in the treasury. This transaction reduced the stockholders' holdings.

On April 14, 1922, the Boston-Montana Corporation issued $5,000,000 worth of 6 per cent. 1923 bonds. The $3,500,000 held by the American Discount Corporation as collateral were from this issue. On August 1 last the following committee was named to protect stockholders in the East: William J. Bursaw, Frank C. Stowell, Harry G. Porch and Thomas J. Boynton, all of Boston, and Charles F. Cowdrey of Fitchburg.

STOCKHOLDERS HIT.

With the selection of this committee came announcement that the capitalization had been changed from 1,000,000 shares, par value $25, to 2,500,000 shares, par value $10. Thus the stockholders' holdings were again reduced, this time 60 per cent., or a cut of 150 per cent. by both changes. This increase of stock made 1,500,000 shares available for treasury use, at a total par value of $15,000,000. The stock on that date (August 2, 1922) was traded on the market at from 85 cents to $1 par value.

The last reduction in the par value of the stock was ratified at a special meeting of the stockholders, September 2, 1922, at the company's office in Butte, Mont. At that meeting the members of the stockholders' protective committee, with the exception of Mr. Boynton, were made directors of the corporation, and Hamilton B. Wills of Toronto and Francis J. Sullivan of Boston were added to the directorate. This election transferred control of the property from Montana to Boston.

ASK ACCOUNTING.

A contract was entered into between the Boston-Montana Corporation and Hamilton B. Wills Co., Ltd., of New York and Toronto, Can., whereby the entire treasury capital stock of approximately 1,500,000 shares, with a market value of $1,000,000 at the time, was to be disposed of by Hamilton B. Wills Co., Ltd., without price.

All this stock has been sold and W. R. Allen of Butte, president of the Boston-Montana Corporation, is quoted as stating that the corporation secured only $88,000 from this sale.

When asked for an accounting, Hamilton B. Wills Co., Ltd., stated that there were approximately 200,000 shares still unsold but that the Boston-Montana Corporation owed them $30,000.

SHARES IN CANADA.

The New England Trust Company was reported to have refused to act as transfer agent for this new issue of stock, as their counsel advised them that they were not satisfied as to the legality of the issue.

The Standard Trust Company of Toronto then became transfer agents. Hamilton B. Wills Co., Ltd., was credited with 100,000 shares and all receipts for the sale of this block of stock in excess of fifty cents a share was to be set aside for the directors. This disclosure caused a sensation.

A second committee was formed consisting of Frank A. Merrill, Fred S. Thorne, Robert M. Currier, Charles C. Burckman and Samuel Usher, 2d. This committee announced that it had been formed to safeguard stock, note and bond holders in the Boston-Montana Corporation.

HEARING POSTPONED.

Circulars were sent out in February soliciting funds from stockholders to prosecute the injunction proceedings against the American Discount Corporation. The injunction proceedings were to have been resumed on Thursday, but were postponed by request of plaintiffs, who secured the previous continuance to obtain further data.

While the bondholders' committee, Merrill, Thorne, et al., were raising funds to enjoin foreclosure of bonds held by the American Discount Corporation, they were reported to have rounded up $500,000 worth of bonds, one-tenth of the total issue, from bondholders and themselves petitioned the New England Trust Company, trustee under the mortgage, to foreclose the property and to use the $500,000 bonds thus hurriedly harvested toward that end.

Fite, professor of political science at Vassar College, lost $4,000 through his incredulity. Many valuable manuscripts were destroyed.

SUGAR BOYCOTT IS UNDER WAY, EXPERTS SAY

There is no sugar shortage.

There is no justification for the high prices.

New York bankers, gamblers and speculators control the market and are responsible for the high prices.

The people, sick and tired of being gyped, have started a boycott of their own to force down prices.

The foregoing statements were made today by W. Van V. Warren, manager of the Boston sales office of the American Sugar Refining Company; Henry E. Worcester, vice president of the Revere Sugar Refinery. They are the biggest refineries in the Northeast and refine virtually every pound of sugar used in New England: Horace S. Ridley of the New England Confectionery Company; Charles F. Adams of the John T. Connor Company, James D. Casey of Cobb, Bates & Yerka and Arthur C. England of Silas Pierce Company.

Their statements were made to Chairman Eugene C. Hultman of the Committee on Necessaries of Life who, under orders from the Legislature, has started a sweeping probe of the recent unreasonable rise in the price of sugar.

"The New York Sugar Exchange exists for purely speculative purposes," declared Adams. "It is nearly cornered, easily manipulated and operates to the disadvantage of the consumer."

Mr. Warren declared that the New York Exchange dominates the sugar market in this country and the wild speculation in raw sugar of which its members are guilty is responsible for the high prices."

"The dealings on that Exchange are by operators and speculators. It is no doubt a fact that the prices fixed by these operations, to a considerable degree, control the price at which actual raw sugar is offered to the refiners in New York."

The price increases began in sugar, Mr. Warren said, shortly after a bulletin from the United States Department of Commerce was interpreted by the press to mean there would be a shortage of 725,000 tons. There was no basis for assuming a shortage, he said. In fact, the most reasonable indications are that there will be a surplus at the end of the year of 475,000 tons.

"The public can prevent a shortage and bring about a stabilization of the sugar market by ignoring sensational and alarming stories and only buying sugar as their normal demands require."

All those present at the conference agreed that the public is buying but a scant supply of sugar; that the present high prices cannot have started a boycott similar to the one by which they broke the sugar market two years ago.

MANY NOTABLES AT HARNEY FUNERAL

In the presence of members of the Essex County and Lynn Bar Associations, Charitable Irish Association and city officials, the funeral of Attorney John M. Harney, prominent Lynn barrister, was held today in St. Joseph's Church, Lynn, when a solemn high mass was celebrated. Mayor Harland A. McPhetres, President William H. Cochrane of the Lynn City Council, Deputy Chief of Police Edward D. Callahan, Judge Ralph W. Reeve of the Lynn District Court, William R. Heffernan, Grand Knight of Valladolid Council, Knights of Columbus, and City Solicitor Patrick F. Shanahan were among those who attended the services.

LYNN WOMAN, 60, TURNS ON GAS; DEAD

Mrs. Carrie Moore, sixty, was found dead today in a chair at her home, No. 480 Smith street, Lynn, by her ten-year-one granddaughter, Hazel Bennett. Gas poured from two open burners on a gas stove. The medical examiner says it was suicide. Mrs. Moore has been despondent because of her health.

Again Under Fire

Kensico Reservoir on May 29, 1922, to keep a tryst with the gang and try if possible to wriggle out of paying the money.

Ward was indicted for first degree murder following bitter public agitation, but the indictment was dropped January 2 on the ground of "insufficient evidence."

A renewed agitation that Ward had been saved from prosecution because of his wealth and social prominence became so widespread that Governor Smith ordered the case re-opened.

Attorney-General Sherman before calling today's hearing went over the mass of records and documents in the case. He summoned former District Attorney Weeks, of Westchester County, who handled the case while public prosecutor. Two deputies who worked on the case were also witnesses today.

POSITION CHANGED.

The discovery of the body on May 16, last, was described by George Lohr and Frank Taxter, telephone linesmen. Lohr said that at first he and his companions thought Peters was intoxicated and asleep.

Taxter corroborated this testimony and added that when they investigated they found Peters was dead. They did not touch the body, he said, as they feared they might leave finger prints and be accused as the murderers.

Taxter declared that a photograph of the body, entered as an exhibit, did not show the position as they saw it. The photograph shows that the feet of the dead man were toward the road, while Taxter declare emphatically that when they discovered the body the head was toward the road.

SHERIFF A WITNESS.

George Werner, sheriff of Westchester County, was questioned by the Attorney-General, admitting there was no stenographer present when he talked with Campbell about the case.

Werner said after Campbell had given him a statement in which it was admitted Ward killed Peters because of a blackmail plot, District Attorney Weeks "sort of took over the investigation."

When the Attorney-General asked Werner if Ward knew what the statement contained he said:

"Why, I suppose he did. He was in the room when I was discussing with Campbell."

Both Werner, Lohr and Taxter were closely questioned as to whether any glass was found in the road near where Peters body was discovered. All said they did not know of any.

Several times the attorney-general asked Lohr and Taxter if anyone but the authorities had talked with them about the case prior to the time they appeared before the Grand Jury which indicted Ward for first degree murder.

NEW LINER FOR HUB TO NEWFOUNDLAND

The Tri-National Steamship Company today announced the charter of the Norwegian steamship Marshall for its Boston, Halifax and St. Johns, N. F. run, to replace the Belvernon, badly damaged in the ice. The company is reported negotiating in England for a ship with accomodations for 100 passengers. A large accumulation of freight is at the company's berth on Commercial wharf. The Marshall will arrive Wednesday to load.

THREATENED TO KILL DOROTHY KEENAN

New York, April 2.—Despite apparent setbacks, the tides of hope for an early solution of the strange murder of Dorothy King ran strong in the official mind.

This was the assurance today of Acting District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora. It followed information turned over to him, and by him to police officials, that on December 13 last a definite threat to murder "Dot" King was made by a man often mentioned in the case.

According to a direct "person to person" report to the authorities this man asserted on the day in question:

RAILED MARSHALL.

"For two months I have been trying to find out who the rich guy is that's been putting up for her down in Fifty-seventh street. Say help me out, won't you? Find out who he is. I'll shake him down for everything he's got and we'll split.

"No one but that b— kill that 'Dot' King if she stops me. She'd be better off dead anyhow. Listen, if she's ever found dead, you'll know who snuffed her out. And you don't need to be afraid of my peeping.

"She, I've got a long finger but it isn't long enough to point anyone out to the cops."

CONVINCED OF PLOT.

The rich guy referred to by the blood-thirsty gentleman who uttered the foregoing threat, it is now known, was John Kearsley Mitchell, the mysterious "John Marshall," who showered money and gifts upon the model murdered by chloroform March 13 last.

Following Mitchell's latest exhaustive interrogation, the authorities are now thoroughly convinced that the real motive for the murder of "Dot" King was blackmail.

QUIZ GIRL ON GRANT

box and the rent is paid under the name Lavine.

DENIES KNOWING GRANT.

The reporter asked: "Did you know Webster Grant?

Miss Morton: "I have heard the name."

"Were you with him at a theatre the night before George Willis, the Boston News Bureau paymaster, was robbed and killed?

"I was not. I do not know any Webster Grant."

"Why did the police question you about him, then?"

"I do not know. A sergeant came here and talked with me, but I could tell him nothing. I know nothing of this man or any crook."

While the theory that Grant was responsible for the News Bureau killing and robbery was upset by the statement of five witnesses that Grant was not the man seen around the Kilby street entrance to the building just before Willis was killed, the police are still working on the idea that he was responsible for the shooting.

They say that he went to a theatre the night before with a girl who resembles Miss Morton.

FIND MEMORANDUM.

A memorandum found in the slain robber's clothes disclosed that he has planned robbing the drug store of Irugs and women's toilet articles.

This information leads the police to think he planned the burglary just to satisfy the desires of his affinity rather than for any hope of making a rich haul.

Police officials have found that Grant robbed a number of women's wear shops and drug stores and in every instance he stole mostly things that would appeal to the vanity of a woman.

Whether this woman is an upstate woman or originally from Boston is a point which the authorities have kept mum. Nor will they disclose just what they wish to learn from her.

STALLION MISSES MATES, KILLS SELF

Louisville, Ky., April 2 (By Cosmopolitan News Service).—Broken at separation from his mates and his owner, Magneto, a 14-year-old stallion committed suicide. The son of Star Shoot was sold by Theodore Mueller to James P. Edwards. While being placed in a truck for transportation from one farm to the other in the region of Louisville, the horse fought desperately. During the journey he plunged and bucked so hard against the sides of the truck that when taken out of it at its destination, he was in dying condition, succumbing soon afterward.

91 IRISH WOMEN ON HUNGER STRIKE

Dublin, April 2 (By International News Service).—Ninety-one women prisoners, held in jail here, are reported to be hunger striking.

One Free State soldier and one Republican were killed and fourteen Republicans were taken prisoners in fighting near Dundalk early today.

Republicans today blew up the Midland Railway bridge just outside of Dublin, preventing thousands of Irish sport lovers from reaching the city to view the Grand National, foremost of the Irish turf events.

BOY INJURED IN LYNN CAFE EXPLOSION

Scores of diners fled from White's Restaurant, No. 39 Summer street, Lynn, today when a hot water tank exploded.

John Cronin of No. 23 Wheeler street, Lynn, eighteen-year-old dishwasher, was injured and his eyesight may be destroyed.

Cronin and another man were in the cellar. They had gone there to fix the heater.

Cronin was directly in front of the tank when the explosion came. He was hurled across the cellar. His face and chest were sprayed with scalding water and oil.

The explosion was heard blocks away. Diners feared the building would collapse and ran into the streets. Some of the women patrons became hysterical.

servant when the comedian returned with Pola Negri, his fiance, and a physician.

The girl was induced to leave after a brief talk with Chaplin, but returned a second time and after being put out said she purchased poison at a nearby drug store and upon effected entrance.

Indeed to enter an automobile, she collapsed and was brought back into the house, saying she had taken poison.

She was rushed to the Receiving Hospital, but after treatment surgeons shook their heads and placed a question mark on the hospital chart.

Copies of messages addressed to General Sherman and Inspector Almeda appealing for funds were found in her possession.

CLAIM DEVER WILL WIN BY OVER 100,000

Chicago, April 2.—Chicago's most amicable mayoralty campaign ends today. It has been marked by a lack of mud-slinging and accusations. Former Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder, Republican, and William C. Dever, Superior Court judge, Democrat, have based their claims on their business training. William A. Cunnea, is the Socialist candidate.

Mr. Lueder's campaign manager claimed he would be elected by at least 40,000 and Democratic forces asserted Judge Dever would be elected by a plurality of 100,000 to 175,000 votes.

SOUTH CAROLINA MILLS RAISE PAY

Columbia, S. C., April 2.—Thousands of textile operatives in South Carolina today received raises of from ten to twelve and one-half per cent., effective in more than a score of cotton mills.

Most of the increases followed announcement of similar action by woolen and worsted mills in New England. The Pacific Mills Company, operating four plants here, announced a wage increase of twelve and one-half per cent.

Merchants' National of Boston, was divorced by Gladys Baldwin Brooks Thayer.

Thayer married Gladys Brooks after heroically rescuing her from drowning at Newport. Prince wooed and won Elizabeth Harding while on furlough from the Lafayette Escadrille, the famous French flying force, in 1917.

Asked today about the report, Governor Harding said:

"I've not heard a report about my daughter and Mr. Thayer. It may or may not be true. She is twenty-five or six now and doesn't confide in me about everything.

"She has written me, however, that she will arrive in Boston this month and I am preparing a house on Beacon street. I met Mr. Thayer when he was president of the Chase National Bank, but never socially. My daughter may have known him socially. I'm not sure."

S. S. CALVIN AUSTIN RESUMES N. Y. RUN

The all-water steamship service between Boston and New York via the Cape Cod Canal was resumed today. The Calvin Austin sailed from India Wharf this afternoon with 125 passengers. The Belfast will sail for New York Tuesday afternoon and will alternate with the Calvin Austin, until April 15, when the North Land, now outfitting for the season will be ready to take her place on the run.

3,260 ARRIVE HERE FROM FOREIGN PORTS

A statement from the Custom House today shows a big increase in steamship passenger traffic at this port during the first three months of 1923. The arrivals in March were 1,921 from Europe, 1,304 from Canada, and thirty-five from the West Indies: total 3,260. In March, 1922, the number from Europe was 113, from Canada 994, from the West Indies fifty-three; total 1,110.

Newest in War Hawks on a Condor 60 to 1 Wins Americans in Paris

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright 1923, Star Co.

IMAGINE A gigantic condor from the Andes sailing through space, carrying on its back resting, watching, a dozen vicious little hawks, able to turn and twist quickly in the air, ready to fly from the back of the great condor, attack and destroy their prey, then return to the resting place on the big bird's back.

YOU WOULD SAY, "How marvelously, how viciously, with what care nature has developed her killing methods." Nature leaves that highly developed killing to man. The leopard doesn't ride after his prey on the back of the elephant or buffalo. The hooded cobra does not travel as a passenger on the python.

MAN WILL show the birds and animals things they never dreamed of. The United States is building a gigantic "lighter than air dirigible" that will carry as part of its equipment twelve small lighting flying machines. Each will be able to start from the big dirigible to attack the enemy, then fly back to roost and wait.

HORRIBLE? YES, but if the world is to have such mischiefs let this nation have them and every other improvement in the game of killing.

For we should use them to defend ourselves from attack, not to attack others, and we know by experience that every possible device will be used in war against us or anybody else.

DIRIGIBLES HIGH up in air could patrol our coasts, carrying each one its supply of swiftly flying TNT, and machine gun carrying "hawks." These could be used to take care of enemy fliers or enemy battleships foolish enough to visit our shores.

You read of one vast flying battleship, carrying a dozen fast small death dealing machines, and wonder how soon men will realize that their only salvation lies in peace.

WHITE BIRD, English race horse, won the Lincoln handicap. The betting against her was 60 to 1. The English newspapers say the man who trained her, and added to the horse's diet two pints of old ale every day. Such ale is not the American 2.75 per cent. It is most powerful with a kick worthy of a horse.

The idea isn't entirely new. American trainers have often stimulated horses with alcohol in jumping contests.

In Italy where the red wine crop was over plentiful, farmers mixed it with horses' oats, to increase their strength.

PROHIBITIONISTS MAY reply that what is good for a horse is not necessarily good for a man and advise you to look up the word "antimony." The meaning of the word is "against monks." The head of a monastery in France, long ago, observed that a certain substance added to the feed of swine made them digest better, and grow fatter. He decided with the best intention to try it on the monks. They died and the substance was called "antimony." It was good for pigs, not for men.

AMERICANS DISCUSSING "French immorality" may find enlightment in the fact that the first man brought in by the police for indecent dancing was an American. It is well known that Americans have contributed their share, financially and otherwise, to so-called "Paris immorality."

A well known young American editor, discussing prohibition, once said, "look at the French. They all drink wine. But whenever I saw anybody drunk in Paris, it was always a foreigner, and often an American."

IT IS announced that the Pope will make a pilgrimage to Lourdes, thus putting an end to imprisonment in the Vatican, which all Popes have voluntarily imposed on themselves as a protest since the Italian royal family established by Garibaldi took from the Popes their temporal power.

JESSICA BROWN CAN LEGALLY WED EARL

JESSICA BROWN

Jessica Brown, former Follies dancer, is free to marry the Earl of Northeak, so the Boston American is informed by an intimate friend of the girl and her former husband, Cyril de Witt Reinhard, screen hero and radio operator.

When her engagement to the wealthy English peer was announced there arose much speculation as to whether she had been divorced from Reinhard, whose carefully waxed moustaches were once the envy of dapper Broadwayites.

Jessica, it was stated, was divorced from Cyril while in Buffalo with her mother, who never did approve of her handsome son-in-law.

Cyril, who was chief engineer for a radio concern, and Jessica met at a war work function in 1917. He carried her off her feet by his ardent wooing.

Cyril lost his job after the war Jessica was then in the Winter Garden show. They separated. Cyril then lost part of his nose when a bomb exploded near him while in Barcelona.

Cyril came back to this country and vainly essayed a reconciliation. The rejected husband had a previous venture in matrimony.

When she was leaving England Jessica denied vehemently that she had ever wed or even contemplated wedding a Spanish Don, as had been reported.

MAIL BANDITS IN DARING HOLDUP

By International News Service.

St. Louis, Mo., April 2.—Six men in an automobile staged a daring holdup of a government mail truck here today and escaped with nine registered mail pouches containing large sums of money.

The robbery occurred in the downtown district. A chauffeur and guard on the mail truck were locked in the cage of the machine when the bandits commandeered it.

Adrian G. Dorlac, messenger, and Edward M. Cunningham, chauffeur, were in command of the truck. Both were armed with .45 calibre pistols.

According to both, the robbers drove from the rear and covered them before they had a chance to reach for their guns.

Two of the bandits jumped from their machines when the mail truck was brought to a halt, according to the two postal employes, and leveled their guns at them. One of the robbers carried a revolver in each hand while the other levelled a sawed-off shot gun at the driver of the truck.

The bandits then directed Cunningham to drive towards the river front and when within a block of the river, commanded the chauffeur to turn into an alley.

After unloading the nine pouches, Dorlac and Cunningham were placed in the cage of the truck and it was ostensibly locked in the rear.

The imprisoned men shouted for help after the bandits had made their escape but they failed to attract any attention for several minutes.

HARDING PLANS MILITANT SPEECHES

Augusta, Ga., April 2.—President Harding is planning a frank appeal to the country to support the foreign policies of his administration. Instead of simply defending the record, the President plans to make a militant presentation of the accomplishments of his administration and t'en charge the Democratic party to a public comparison of policies. Mr. Harding will not appear in the role of an apologist but rather as an apostle of achievement.

18 PER CENT. GAIN IN TAX RECEIPTS

New York, April 2.—Income tax receipts for the first quarter of 1923 increased eighteen per cent. over last year in the New York District, Frank K. Bowers, Collector of Internal Revenue, announced today. Receipts from January 1 to March 30, totalled $103,884,389.66 as against $87,811,139.77 for the same period last year.

THESE PATRONS HAVE 'PITY' FOR GAS COMPANY!

Mayor Michael Cashman of Newburyport and the Newburyport Gas & Electric Company did an 'Alphonse and Gaston' before the State Department of Public Utilities today.

Cashman said the gas rate, $1.70 per 1000 cubic feet was rather high and the people had been disappointed in not receiving lower rates in years gone by.

However, the company has labored under financial stress, he said, and as the people of Newburyport want to be fair he declared they should cheerfully accept the decision of the department, even though it be against their request for lower rates.

President Arthur W. Wood said the company has taken care of a floating debt of $500,000 and it must get new money to build a new plant or else it will have to buy current from the outside to supply the growing demands.

He said the company hopes to further reward the public's patience by awarding a lower rate—sometime in the future!

CHASES WOLF WITH SKIS AND KILLS IT

Fort Arthur, Ont., April 2.—Gus Matson today was exhibiting a fine wolf pelt as proof of his claim that he can outrun a wolf—provided the snow is deep, enough. Matson's supine adversary avoided his trail until it became a matter of professional honor with Matson to capture the beast. He got out his skis and took the wolf's trail. Gliding over the snow after it, he quickly caught up and dispatched it with a club.

BATTLE SO OPEN SHOP BANDITS WAR LOOMS IN REVERE

Garage Man Routs Trio of Auto Thieves With Bullets; Robbers Make Escape

Three bandits, who attempted to steal three automobiles from the Park square garage in Revere today, fled without the machines, after a running exchange of revolver shots with Jesse Manchnnikoss, proprietor of the garage.

Pursued by police, the bandits escaped along Northern avenue in the direction of Lynn.

Raymond Carey of No. 114 Kimball avenue, Revere, who was passing by the garage in the midst of the gunplay, escaped a bullet by dodging into the nearest doorway.

Description of the three bandits has been sent out. Search is being made for them along the shore territory north of Boston and in this city.

SIX SHOTS ARE FIRED.

Six shots were fired by Manchnikoss and one of the bandits. So far as known none of the bandits was wounded.

Manchnikoss was alone in his garage, he told the police, when a stranger came in. He told Manchnikoss that his automobile was on the North Shore Road with a crippled tire and he wished to get a spare tire right away.

Manchnikoss put a new tire in one of his own machines and started out with the stranger. They drove so far, without coming to the supposed stranded car, that Manchnikoss became suspicious.

"Where's your car?" he asked the stranger. The latter gave a location in still another section of the city.

That struck Manchnikoss as queer that he headed his machine about and started full speed back toward his unprotected garage.

Just as he whirled up toward the garage he saw two men bringing three cars out of the building.

Manchnikoss drew his revolver and blazed away at the two men twice.

The next he knew, he told the police, the man in the car with him, who had told him the decoy story about a crippled car up the North Shore road, jumped from the car, pulled a revolver and began firing at him.

Manchnikoss fired a third shot. Three shots in all were fired at him.

Raymond Carey came into the picture inadvertently and side-stepped into a doorway shelter as a bullet whizzed by him.

The three bandits abandoned the three cars that had been taken out of the garage and legged it at top speed up Northern avenue.

Patrolmen Amos MacCauley and William J. Danahy, who heard the shooting, came on the run. But the bandits had a good start and disappeared.

OPEN SHOP WAR LOOMS IN MINES

Campaign Begins Today in Coal Fields of Southwest Pennsylvania

Pittsburgh, April 2 (By International News Service).—The early part of this month is expected to witness another titanic struggle between the United Mine workers and the coal operators of Southwestern Pennsylvania, particularly in the Somerset fields.

The United Mine Workers' organization is getting set to make another desperate attempt to unionize the field, according to word that reached here today.

Mass meetings will be held today in several sections of the field. A large number of organizers are prepared to go in to pursuade the workers to forsake the open shop policy now in force.

The most serious aspect of the situation is word received here that preparations are being made for a renewal of the strike which was partly suspended last Summer with many miners still out and refusing to return to the mines not signing the union scale. Operators declare the men prefer steady work and are satisfied with present conditions.

John Brophy, president of District No. 1, Union Mine Workers, will speak at some of the mass meetings today, including Windber, where the great operations of the Berwind White Coal Company are located. This company is the strongest opponent of the miners' union.

2-GUN BANDIT ROBS SO. END COLLECTOR

A masked bandit leveled two guns in the face of George H. Mahady, a rent collector, and robbed him of $120 while he was walking a South End street today.

The gunman then leaped in an automobile purring at the curb and sped away, nonchalantly removing his mask as he drove off.

Mahady had just collected the rentals of the Arena Chambers at No. 398 Northampton street.

SALEM STOREMAN HELD IN ARSON CASE

Salem, April 2.—Antonio Amerta, charged with burning merchandise in his grocery store on Margin street, in an attempt to defraud an insurance company, was held in $2,000 for a hearing April 9 by Judge George B. Sears in Salem district court today.

The fire started at midnight in a closet. Firemen reported finding kerosene on some of the goods. Amerta carried $2,000 insurance. State police are investigating. Amerta, who lives at No. 19 Creek street, said he was in Peabody when the fire started.

FIND 2 MORE BODIES IN HARTFORD CRASH

Hartford, April 2.—Two more bodies, making nine in all, were recovered today from the ruins of the 160 foot tower at the Fuller Brush Company, two sides of which were ripped away Saturday afternoon. A check-up of the employes of various concerns working on the building shows all accounted for new except two elevator men who had been working on the elevators directly beneath the tank.

DEAD, SITTING IN CHAIR, RICHLY GARBED

London, April 2.—Mrs. Jessie May Mellon Bowle, formerly of California and lindetood to be the wife of an American millionaire, died the death of a lonely traveler in a London hotel today. Paper found in her room indicated the woman had traveled widely after she left San Francisco two years ago. Since her arrival here, she kept entirely to herself. The body was found by her maid, beautifully garbed in evening dress decorated with rich jewels. Mrs. Bowie died sitting in a chair.

'CANNED WILLIE' HERE FROM ARGENTINA

"Canned Willie," is now being imported from the Argentine, the supplies the War Department dumped on the market after the war having been exhausted. The steamship Thode Fagerlund arrived at Commonwealth Pier today with 5,000 big cases officially listed as "tinned beef." The ship also brought 4,000 bales of wool, 5,000 hides, 1,500 bags of casein and other cargo for Boston and New York.

ESSEN CLASH IS LAID TO THE NATIONALISTS

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, April 2.—Herr Albert, who was chief of German propaganda early in the World War, was appointed minister of reconstruction in the German cabinet today. He is an adherent of Chancellor Cuno.

Berlin, April 2.—The Communist newspaper Rote Fahne, referring to the disturbance at the Krupp plant, Essen, which resulted in the death of nine Germans and the wounding of thirty-four others, says that for several weeks past the walls and workshops of the plant had been covered with German Nationalist placards. The dispatch continues:

"Immediately on learning of the arrival of French troops at the works a number of Nationalists incited the workmen to resist and urged them not to allow any soldier to leave the plant alive. When members of the Workers' Council, who had been deliberating, left the conference hall they found themselves in the presence of a compact crowd led by enraged Nationalists, including numerous students, who were shouting 'Down with France.'"

Krupps' Chief Declares Seized Men Innocent

Essen, April 2 (By the Associated Press).—Herr Shaffer, director-general of the Krupp plant, asserts the four directors arrested on charges befalling last Saturday's shootings were in no way responsible.

The French allege the blowing of the sirens at the works, which excited the men, could have been stopped by the officials even if they had not ordered the signal. Herr Shaffer points out that it is customary for the men to blow the sirens "as a fire signal or when there is sign of danger of any kind."

Herren Hartwig, Oesterlin, Ritter and Bruhn, the directors held, were arrested at their homes early Easter morning. The Krupp plant is to be closed at least until Wednesday so that the excitement may die down.

MISSING CHILDREN FROZEN TO DEATH

Bay City, Mich., April 2.—Sofien, seven years old, and Mary, nine, daughters of Felix Ratal, whose bodies were found in a field near the Kawkawlin River Saturday, died from exposure, an investigation revealed today. A third child, Stanley, six, is still missing. The children disappeared March 28, on their way from school to their farm home. Their clothing was frozen, indicating they had first fallen into the river.

DESERTED WIFE TAKES POISON, BEGS DEATH

Mrs. Alice H. Keefe, broken-hearted young wife and mother, tossed on a City Hospital cot today, her body racked by poison, her soul by despair.

She was too proud to appeal for aid to her well-to-do relatives in Athol. She had ever led them to believe she had married well and happily.

In desperation she swallowed 100 grains of veronal. Crazed by the drug, she seized a stone and smashed a large plate glass window of S. Canner's furniture store on Washington street, South End. Then she broke a restaurant window. Then she ran, was caught and sent to the hospital. Now she prays for death.

TRIVEN DESPONDENT.

She had been despondent, friends say, on account of poverty and bitter memories. She has kept the name of her own relatives secret. She told persons who sought to aid her that her father, a wealthy resident of Athol, never forgave her for her marriage to Daniel Keefe. By pathetic subterfuges she tried to make her people think she and her husband were prosperous.

She is a registered nurse, but could not get employment. Friday she was taken from a theatre in a faint. She was treated two days at the Relief Station.

FINDS HUSBAND GONE.

Returning, she found her husband was away. He had left the baby with neighbors in their little flat at No. 4 Goldsmith place, Roxbury. He had departed with a statement about not coming back until he could "make things right for Alice and the kid."

POLICE JOIN IN STATE CRUSADE

Wilson and Goodwin Get After Drunks and Other Reckless Drivers

Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson of Boston and Frank A. Goodwin, Statt Registrar of Motor Vehicles both issued warnings today to motorists, especially in regard to the hazard of little children.

The warnings cited faulty brakes on motor vehicles, particularly trucks; drunken motorists; reckless drivers gennerally.

Parents are asked to co-operate by cautioning their children to keep on sidewalks as much as possible and to be careful crossing the streets.

209 KILLED IN YEAR.

Commissioner Wilson said that 209 children were killed in this State last year and 4619 injured.

Register Goodwin said that eight children were killed last month, most of them by heavy motor trucks. In the last three days four children were killed in the vicinity of Boston.

Commissioner Wilson called on every man in the police department in a general order to do his best to reduce the hazard. He asked every law-abiding operator to assist the crusade.

The speed mania, the desire to pass other vehicles and the operation of cars by intoxicated persons were chief causes of accidents, in the commissioner's opinion.

He pointed out that, with the coming of fair weather and the increase in motor car travel, extra care should be exercised.

TO REVOKE LICENSNES.

Registrar Goodwin has decided to take away the registration of every auto that is operated with poor brake equipment. He will revoke the license of every driver whose neglect is responsible for such faulty equipment.

Mary Sheridan, six years old, was playing in the street in Watertown. A monster truck tore down upon her. The driver clapped on both brakes. They failed to hold. The little girl is dead.

Chief Milmore of the Watertown police intends to test the brakes of the truck. It was discovered that the foot brake would not hold at all and that the emergency brake was practically useless.

Goodwin today suspended the registration of the truck and took up the driver's license.

"Everything possible will be done by my department to stop these needless fatalities," he declared.

INDIAN PRINCE DIES FOR LOVE OF NEW YORK SHOW GIRL

LEARNED HINDOO LEAVES BIG FORTUNE TO FOLLIES MAID

New York, April 2.—Shakespeare was wrong when he wrote "Men have died and worms have eaten them, but not for love," as the death of the learned Hindoo Prince, Sarath Ghosh, has gone to show. He died for love—for love of Marcellus, a beautiful Follies girl, as she says.

Irene is a sculptor and a model when not with the Follies. At her home, No. 145 East Ninety-Second street, she said:

"Six or seven years ago I met the Prince at the studio where I was dancing.

TOO DEEP FOR HER.

"He was extremely learned in Indian philosophy. I was too young to appreciate his marvelous conversation and I used almost to go to sleep at times.

"Finally, after a misunderstanding, which was unfortunate, my sister asked him not to come to the house any more.

"I saw him once after that. Six months later, while he was all run down and worried, he took the flu and died.

"A year later a woman called on me. She was the administratrix of his estate. She said three-quarters of his estate was mine and that his beautiful India prints and scarabs were left to the Metropolitan Museum.

WAS PERSISTENT.

"My lawyers are having difficulty in finding out where all the money is kept, as so much of it is in foreign banks in India. It may be $200,000 or much more.

"He never recovered from the disappointment that I would not marry him and go with him to Paris to live. He begged my mother to influence me to go and wanted to take her with us.

"The Prince did not die over Nahane Kouppe, as told in the newspapers. If this were true he would not have left me his money.

FIND BODY OF MISSING TURK, KEMAL'S FOE

Constantinople, April 2. (By the Associated Press)—The body of Ali Chukri Bey, deputy from Erzerum to the Turkish National Assembly at Angora, missing several days, has been found buried near the home of the notorious Osman Agha. The body was fully clothed. The authorities sought to interview Osman Agha, but he had disappeared.

Chukri Bey was one of the founders of the newspaper Tan, which has consistently opposed the policies of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, Nationalist leader. After his disappearance, one of his colleagues hinted in a speech before the assembly that he had fallen a victim to his political opinions.

Turk Assembly Quits; Victory for Kemal

Angora, April 2.—The Turkish National Assembly has voted to dissolve. New elections will be held in two months, so that the new assembly may be prepared to ratify a peace treaty in the event one is concluded.

The dissolution proposal was a government motion and its adoption is regarded as having strengthened the position of Mustapha Kemal Pasha.

The present assembly will continue to function until the elections are held.

It is expected the Turkish reply to the Allied communication with regard to the Near East negotiations will be delivered by the end of the present week.

Greek-Russian Refugees Dying by Hundreds

Constantinople, April 2.—The refugees situation here is becoming so serious the American Chamber of Commerce has called the American Red Cross and the Near East relief appealing for funds to evacuate the 24,000 Greeks and Russians here.

The mortality now exceeds 1 per cent. daily and there seems no possibility of checking the epidemics so long as present conditions continue.

Meanwhile, there are continual escapes of individuals among the refugees, who are mingling with the city's population, threatening the spread of disease here and menacing all Europe.

'TO THE LADIES' HUMOROUS AND ENTERTAINING

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

IT is exceedingly doubtful if the modern drama has ever brought together a larger group of preposterous characters and placed them in more engaging situations for smart comedy effect than you found at the Wilbur Saturday in "To the Ladies" wherein George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, rising young dramatists, who appear to have caught the public ear, made short and humorous work of business efficiency and the familiar trade banquet.

FURNISHES THRILL.

For the man who takes his comedy straight and denies the chaser, "To the Ladies" will furnish the expected thrill. The situations were all built to order on a pattern, as obvious as the magazine advertisements you have read with credulous amazement.

You may not fall for the enticing orange grove proposition, as did the young man in the Kaufman-Connelly play, but you do know that the "Mr. Sims of Seattle" incident nearly conned you into buying a memory course in ten lessons—money refunded if not satisfactory.

Situations devised to hit Mr. Average Citizen right under his advertised collar were never better arranged for the theatre. You have met them all before—the trade banquet orator who wondered what he was trying to talk about, the unemotional waiters who juggled crockery at the wrong time and the pompous executive you would like to have murdered in simple human justice.

HILARIOUS TRAGEDY.

They were all there; also the instalment man who dropped in in for the piano at the wrong time—not a new device in the theatre, but always an impressive incident. In the case of "To the Ladies" it was hilarious tragedy.

Nearly all of the Kaufman-Connelly characters were purely theatrical, needlessly exaggerated and compelled to wander through tedious "business" that would have lingered anywhere except in the theatre. It was in the trade banquet scene that you met good old friends who ran true to form—the toastmaster, the specially engaged speaker who threw highly colored oratory all over the place, the amateurs called upon to respond with a "few remarks" and the waiters who didn't care a gosh darn what it was all about.

It was here that "To the Ladies" came into its own as a smart comedy of the movement; it was here that you lived your cub days over again—days when you covered banquets (business office orders) and all but died like a hero on the spot.

Gland Craze Boosts Price of Monkeys to $10,000

By International News Service.

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 2.—The hope that seeks to extend the time of youth may depopulate the simian quarters of the forests of Africa.

Sol. A. Stephan, director of the Cincinnati Zoo, today made public a letter from Claude W. Bostock, New York dealer in animals, to whom the director had applied for a male chimpanzee to replace one gone to monkey heaven.

Bostock replied that it was impossible to obtain male chimpanzees for exhibition purposes. He said American and European demands for monkey glands, sought by aged men eager for rejuvenation, had boosted the price of these animals to $10,000.

FREE SEATS FOR RED HEADS AT 'SPICE OF 1922'

A special matinee with free seats for red heads!

Time—Next Wednesday at 2 p. m.

Place—The Majestic Theatre, where "Spice of 1922," Jack Lait's big revue of dainty dancing darlings, tuneful singers, clever comedians, gorgeous gowns and sumptuous scenery, is scoring a hit.

The girl—Any Greater Boston girl whose hair matches the brilliant strawberry blonde locks of Florence Browne, one of the principals in the kaleidoscopic revue.

The judges—Manager Henry Taylor of the Majestic Theatre and Manager Nat Phillips of "Spice of 1922" company.

The reason—Miss Browne wants every red headed girl in town to see her own wealth of bright red curls and get envious.

If you have red hair, and believe it is as bright as Miss Browne's all you have to do to get a free orchestra seat for this snappy musical show is to go to the Majestic Theatre on Wednesday afternoon. Managers Taylor and Phillips will give you the once over, and if your hair is within a few shades of Miss Browne's you will receive a ticket with the compliments of the management.

Perhaps after the show Miss Browne will form a Boston chapter of the Red Headed Girls' Union of America.

At any rate, here's a chance for red heads—noted for the warmth of their emotions—to get a free seat at the most caloric musical production seen in Boston this season.

MYSTERY CALL KEEPS FIREMEN FROM BLAZE

Chief Edward E. Russell of the Lynnfield fire department and Chief of Police Allan Tedford, are investigating a telephone call received by Charles F. Ricker, of the Jane Harvey Store at Soues Lynnfield, following which there was a $2,000 fire at the home of W. T. Dean, at Lynnfield Heights.

Ricker's call notified him that the Lynnfield fire department was about to test the whistles and asked him to notify the call firemen not to respond.

Fifteen minutes after the telephone call the fire whistles sounded box 36. Chemical 1, with its three regular men answered. On the way the chemical generally picks up the call men gather about Ricker's store. When it went by nobody made a move to go with it.

Half an hour later the second alarm came in. It was then that the fifteen call men learned that a real fire was in progress.

The fifteen men then started the hike to the place and arrived in time to see the last timbers of the house burning, the three members of the chemical company having fought the fire alone believing the call men were on the way.

On the Mountain Top

CLIMB the mountain—stand on the peak—and before you there unfolds a panorama extending as far as your eye can reach. Stay in the valley, and your view is restricted by the surrounding hills.

This newspaper—properly used—will guide you to the mountain top. Read it and your vision is enlarged. You get a bird's-eye view of world events. You glimpse the doings of the day.

Fail to use it, and your view is limited—you remain in ignorance not only of events at home and abroad, but of much that concerns you even more vitally—news of the very things that have to do with your personal, everyday life.

Some one might be selling a new, better and more economical food; or a utensil that would add immeasurably to your comfort and well-being; or some better material for shoes or clothing—but you would never know, because of your restricted view.

You may read every line of the news columns, but if you overlook the advertising, you are still living in the valley. You remain uninformed about many things you ought to know in order to live a happy, useful, profitable life in this age of progress.

Climb out of the valley to the mountain top. Read the advertisements

KEEP ON, LIARS! MORE THEATRE TICKETS READY TO BE MAILED

THURSDAY IS BIG DAY FOR SPECIAL MATINEE

This is the week, liars.

Thursday is the day. The hour is 2:15. At the Hollis Street Theatre. When the clock hits 2:15, the curtain will rise on one of the most interesting shows ever given—the Liars' Matinee of "Lightnin'," given by the Boston American.

The choice, select, picked liars of New England will be there as guests of this newspaper. Many of them have already had their tickets mailed to them. But there are still several hundred tickets to go out.

If you haven't already sent in a contribution to his unique feature, do it now. Among those present at the Liars' Matinee will be the following, to whom a ticket has been mailed:

CHARLES A. POSHEY, No. 6 Morley street, Roxbury.

"Gentlemen, I'm an artist, not only as a liar, but with the old canvas and brush. I'm probably one of the most realistic painters in the world. So much so, in fact, that it nearly cost me my life last month. I painted a Winter picture. It was so darned realistic that as I sat watching it, I caught a cold which developed into pneumonia. I have just recovered from this illness and am in fine shape for some recreation."

E. E. CHAMPNAY, No. 33 Dorr street, Roxbury.

"If by chance I should win a ticket to the Liars' Matinee, I want to say right now that after the show I expect to invite the whole company to have dinner with me at the Copley-Plaza."

SAMUEL BERKOFSKY, No. 373 Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury:

"I have been blind for ten years, but the other day, reading the stories in the Liars' Contest, I regained my eyesight. However, I'm not so much recovered that I can see from the back of the theatre. About the tenth row."

Mrs. Bessie McDonough, Spring street, Millis, Mass.:

"Fertile soil up my way. Wanted to bake a banana pie. Had only one banana. Planted in my back yard. By the time I had my crust ready there was a whole banana tree grown up. How do you like my crust?"

Mary L. Jordan, No. 145 Franklin street, Lawrence, Mass.:

"I have been engaged for years. I blush to admit it. It was a source of much embarrassment to me during the period when they were wearing short skirts. So when old man Cone came to town I attended his lectures and tried his system. Now I'm knock-kneed."

David M. March, No. 306 Bay State road, Boston:

"The shortest and most common lie today is this: 'Old man, I know where I can get you the real old stuff for six dollars a quart.'"

Mrs. B. Potter, No. 240 Humboldt avenue, Roxbury:

"I can't enter your contest. A lie never passes through my lips. I talk through my nose most of the time. Hot dog."

Philip M. Miner, No. 140 Hemenway street, Boston:

"Two can live as cheaply as one."

Frances H. Cohen, No. 9 Gordon street, Roxbury:

"We ate eight days out in the China Sea.

In the Good Ship Canteloupe,
When with an awful creak,
The sprank a leak,
In our cargo of toilet soap
We were 18,000 miles from land,
And perhaps a trifle more,
When we threw the soap into the sea,
And washed ourselves ashore."

Time is short. Send your lies to the Liars' Contest Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street Boston, Mass.

Officials Invited

City and State officials have been invited to attend the fourth annual dance of the Westminster Social and Athletic Club at the Chateau Dansant tonight. Interest is centred in the prize dance, which has been announced.

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE

People Notice It. Clear It Up with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the wonderful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c and 30c.

"TIZ" FOR TENDER, SORE, TIRED FEET

Ah! what relief. No more tired feet; no more burning feet, swollen bad smelling, sweaty feet. No more pain in corns, callouses or bunions. No matter what ails your feet or what under the sun you've tried without getting relief, just use "TIZ."

"TIZ" draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet; "TIZ" is magical; "TIZ" is grand; "TIZ" will cure your foot troubles so you'll never limp or draw up your face in pain. Your shoes won't seem tight and your feet will never, never hurt or get sore, swollen or tired.

Get a box at any drug or department store, and get relief for a few cents. Walter Luther Dodge Co., New York, N. Y.

HERE'S WINNER OF THE RADIO WRINKLE

An easy way to wind your own honeycomb coils, tapping them wherever desired, wins the radio wrinkle contest for the past week.

Here is how to do it:

Use a cardboard tube two inches in diameter. This is the standard size for honeycomb coils, and by using it you will secure the standard inductance for such coils.

Cut it into inch and a quarter lengths. Each length will supply the form for one coil. Coat with shellac and dry.

Along the edge of each tube punch sixteen evenly spaced holes just large enough to pass No. 20 B. & S. wire. The holes on opposite sides should not line up, but should be staggered.

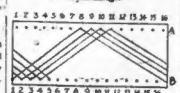
Insert sixteen No. 20 iron wires four inches long. No. 26 or No. 24 B. & S. D. C. C. wire is used for winding. Beginning by numbering the pegs as shown in the diagram, the wire is started on 1B, goes to 8A, from there to 2B, then 9A, and so on until sixteen turns have been wound.

The windings are then given a coat of shellac, and another layer of windings put on, and so on until the proper number of windings are on. If you want an L-50, put on fifty turns; L-75, seventy-five turns.

Taps may be taken off at any time and brought out to the side of the coil on a loop.

When all the turns have been put on, the coil is given another light coat of shellac and the pins gently removed.

Contest Winner



How to wind your honeycomb coils. A two-inch tube, an inch and a quarter in width, with 16 pegs staggered, on either side, is used as the form. The nails are later removed and a complete honeycomb coil results. Wind any number of turns and tap as often as desired. Winning wrinkle contributed by C. F. Wood, No. 39 Cheever street, Milton, Mass. Fig. 1 shows the form before winding, and Fig 2, shows how the windings would look flattened out.

The After Effects of Colds and Grip

"Best Treated With Father John's Medicine"

There is real danger in the after effects of colds and grip. These attacks leave their victims with a cough or in a weakened condition, which are open to the attacks of other illness. You can build up your lowered resisting power by taking Father John's Medicine, the pure food elements of which strengthen and nourish the system.

Father John's Medicine soothes and heals the lining of the breathing passages and being a real food medicine builds new strength and flesh without using dangerous drugs.

FLOYD JOHNSON RATED AS THIRD BEST HEAVYWEIGHT

DEMPSEY AND WILLS ONLY SUPERIORS

By JACK CONWAY.

Floyd Johnson!

Where does he stand in the ranking of the world's heavyweights?

Floyd Johnson

If this writer were asked to give the list of the five leading heavyweights, he would naturally put Jack Dempsey first. He is a greater fighter than even John L. Sullivan was in his prime.

Harry Wills, a negro, would be awarded second place. Then would follow Floyd Johnson, Jess Willard and Kid Norfolk in the order named.

Luis Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, would not rate very high right now. Possibly after he has gained some more ring experience he will be crowding Johnson, Willard and Norfolk for a position near the top of Dempsey's challengers.

Tex Rickard says Firpo is another Jeffries. He certainly has the build and the punch. A little more strenuous work in the ring may give him the required polish he needs to gain a position at the top of his boxing class.

Either Johnson or Willard will be knocked out of our list of the "first five" when they battle in a fifteen-round bout for the New York Milk Fund, of which Mrs. William Randolph Hearst is chairman, on May 12.

Jack Dempsey

Fifteen-round bouts between heavyweights usually furnish a decisive winner. So either Johnson or Willard will be removed from serious consideration in the heavyweight division after the big battle at the Yankees' ball park.

Meanwhile, take your faithful typewriter in hand and hang out your list of the five leading heavyweights. You may not agree with our list. Which is merely one more reason why your selections will be interesting.

Tommy Nee to Battle Henry Ford at Triple A

You will see a classy bantamweight bookingwhen Tommy Nee of South Boston and Henry Ford of the North End clash in the feature tenround bout at the Armory A. A.'s show at the Grand Opera House tomorrow night.

Nee and Ford are rated with the most promising boxers in the country. They have defeated all comers and now stand ready to step into the big money.

Those fans who have been claiming that New England has not developed any star men during the past few years, should journey to the Armory Club tomorrow night. They will find that Ford and Nee have an abundance of class. You will realize that these two youngsters have plenty of reasons for believing they are capable of holding their own with the so-called headliners of their boxing division.

Most Difficult Bout in Weeks to "Dope"

Ford and Nee present trouble for the dopester. This writer has established a new world's record in naming twenty-six straight winners of ring and mat contests.

We are presented with a real problem, however, when we are called upon to name the victor of tomorrow night's quarrel. Ford and Nee are evenly matched. There is not a great deal to choose between the two boys. One may be superior in one line, but the other evens it up by having the shade in some other department of the game.

Over in South Boston they will tell you that Nee will win. Down in the North End and West End they like Ford.

We shall get the last minute dope from the rival training camps today and then make a brave attempt to continue our run of winning selections.

Barney Snyder, Roxbury bantamweight, and Tony Thomas of New Bedford will clash in the semi-final of ten rounds. This should be a fast bout. Snyder is out to win a place in the sun once more, while Thomas is just as determined to prove he is one of the best of our New England bantamweights.

There will also be a couple of eights. Barney Nelson of Lowell will meet Willie Ryan of Providence, while Bobby Robideau of Philadelphia will collide with Spike Hennessey of Waltham.

FIGHT FANS AMAZED AT WILLARD'S COMEBACK

FISTIC CIRCLES TALK ABOUT WILLARD

By W. S. FARNSWORTH.

New York, April 2.—Billy McCarney's stories about "the Jess Willard" from the training camp of the Pottawatomie Founder at Excelsior Springs, Mo., are causing something of a commotion in fistic circles.

McCarney was sent to Excelsior Springs by the American to make a faithful report on the work and appearance of the former champion of the world, who is getting himself ready for his fight with Floyd Johnson for the benefit of the Milk Fund on May 12.

McCarney is an old-time promoter and manager of fighters, especially heavyweights, and is regarded as one of the keenest judges of a man's condition and ability in the business. He brought out and developed Luther McCarthy, and had him close to the title when McCarthy was killed.

McCarney went to Excelsior Springs a little bit skeptical as to Willard's ability to regain anything like his old condition, but his reports, made out without bias or prejudice, indicate that Jess is accomplishing an amazing "comeback."

Big Surprise Is the Way Big Jess Trains

The big surprise to local followers of boxing is Willard's strict adherence to training methods, for which he never had any great fondness after he became champion. That he is doing real road work is most surprising, because when he was training for Dempsey at Toledo, Jess paid little attention to putting his leg muscles in condition.

As a result of McCarney's reports on Jess' labors and his appearance, opinion as to the result of the Willard-Johnson fight has begun to veer around.

At first many thought that Jess would be too fat and too slow for a fast young fellow like Johnson, but with Jess in the condition McCarney's stories indicate, it may be a different tale.

Bi, Kansan Puts His Mind on His Business

The fact, too, that Jess is discussing Johnson's style, as he saw it the night of the Johnson-Brennan fight, proves that the big Kansan is at last putting his mind on his business. Heretofore Willard rarely discussed pugilistic topics, even before a big fight. Pugilism seemed to be his very last thought.

Willard will move closer to New York to finish up his training a couple of weeks before the fight. Then New Yorkers will get a peek at him, and if Jess is as good as McCarney says he will probably enter the ring a strong favorite over Johnson.

The Iowan has not yet commenced active training. His manager, Charley Cook, made a trip to Long Beach last week and looked over the Hotel Belmont with a view to establish quarters there, but he has not reached a final decision.

ROCKMINSTER STARTS IN INAUGURAL HANDICAP

By TASKER OGLE

Baltimore, April 2.—Monifort Jones is the only owner of a great racing stable—by "great" stable is meant an aggregation of thoroughbreds of various ages that cearned as much as $100,000 in stakes and purses last season and may reasonably be expected to do that or better—who will shoot his best ones this week and next week at Bowie.

Today the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association will inaugurate the first thoroughbred race meeting of the Eastern season.

Bowie racing will run through April 14. It will be characterized by the distribution among the owners of the 700 participating horses of $150,000 and the running of a couple of $5,000 stakes, one the Inaugural Handicap, a sprint of seven furlongs, the other the Prince George's, a gallop of one mile and a sixteenth. Both for three-year-olds and over.

One of the twenty-five Jones-owned horses, Kay Spence, the Jones trainer has in the Prince George's and in the Inaugural Handicap, which will ber un today. Rockminster, which is a son of Friar Rock and Mallard. He was a three-year-old star last season. He defeated Lucky Hour in the fourth Latonia championship, a $35,000 race.

Rockminster shaded Exterminator's American record for one mile and three-quarters by a second and equalled the mark of 2:53 3-5, set for the world by the English Pommern.

One of Four That Would Fetch Half a Million

Rockminster is one of four four-year-olds now in Maryland that would fetch something like half a million dollars at public auction if there were enough oil millionaires like Monifort Jones, Harry F. Sinclair, Gusher Bill Rowe, Edward F. Simms and J. B. Cosden about to bid on them.

The others are Lucky Hour and My Play of the Simms stable and Samuel D. Riddle's Oceanic. They are at Havre De Grace where Lucky Hour and Oceanic will race in the last fortnight of April.

Harry Payne Whitney will race Good Night and Groomster, respectively, a three-year-old and a four-year-old of moderate pretensions, and eight second string two-year-olds at Bowie. The class of his string is at Brookdale Farm in New Jersey, training for the Havre De Grace meeting.

Racing People Are Curious to Learn About the Sage

With Rockminster at Bowie are Out Out, High Cloud, Fair Phanton, Pegasus, Surf Rider, The Sage, The Clown, Rouleau, Miss Carina and Resting Time. Racing folk are curious to see what manner of colt The Sage is.

A son of George Smith, himself a Kentucky Derby winner, The Sage is the only colt Jones has in the coming renewal of the West's richest three-year-old special. The Sage did not race last season.

Rockminster has undergone an early preparation for Bowie racing because he is pointing for a Kentucky campaign and will have Exterminator as an opponent in the renewals at Churchill Downs in May of the $10,000 Clark and the $15,000 Kentucky handicaps and at Latonia in July of the $15,000 Independence handicaps.

He Will Be Right When He Gets to Kentucky

Exterminator will be as right as rain when he gets to Kentucky. He is training as briskly at Havre de Grace at the beginning of his seventh season as he did in Kentucky in the Spring of 1917 at the beginning of his first.

Rockminster, which had some bad luck in Kentucky last Spring, did not prove the most consistent of horses in the late Summer and Autumn, after finding his racing legs. But in a renewal of the Huron Handicap at Saratoga he defeated Whiskaway.

C. W. Clark, of Montana, had just paid Harry Payne Whitney the record American price for a horse of racing age of $128,000.

Jones withstood the temptation to put Out Out in the Preakness and Kentucky Derby, because he realized that it is always hard for a filly to beat colts in the Spring, in spite of the fact that Out Out revealed rare class last Fall.

Out Out will try her luck this Spring in renewals of the Pimlico, Kentucky and Latonia Oaks, three filly races that will have an aggregate value of $25,000.

Her racing at Bowie will be in preparation for these specials. She has come to Bowie with the reputation of being in splendid condition.

PATERSON AND SCULLINS GO TO DRAW

By ART CURLY.

Harrison, N. J., April 2.—The Paterson football aggregation, winners of the Eastern division of the National Cup competition, held the Scullins Steel F. C. of St. Louis, the present United States champions and winners of the Western division, to a draw at two goals each, in the final for the Dewar trophy, emblematic of the National soccer championship, before a record crowd of 15,000 fans. Two extra 15-minute periods were played, but neither team scored.

Paterson had the best soccer machine and had at least 75 per cent. of the play. During the game they forced 19 corners to none for the champions. Hard luck and erratic marksmanship on the part of the New Jersey forwards, coupled with the sensational goal tending of Harry Ollerman, was the main reason why Paterson was unable to win.

The visitors garnered their two goals on breakaways before Paterson collected any. Brannigan netted the first one late in the first half and Schwartz got another two 15 minutes from the start of the second half. Dugan scored first for Paterson on a cross from Irvins and Hemingsley registered the equalizer on a head pass from Fryer.

Fryer, Reynolds, McKenna and Maguire were the stars for Paterson, while Ollermann, Tate, Brady and Rooney did the best work for the champions.

FIGHTS WILL GET MILK FUND A MILLION

By JACK KEARNS.
(Manager of Jack Dempsey.)

Los Angeles, Cal., April 2.—It is seldom that I get very enthusiastic over any boxing show in which Jack Dempsey isn't slated to box, but I want to call the attention of boxing fans to the huge benefit boxing card that will be staged at the Yankee Stadium in New York May 12.

In the first place, the show is a benefit for a wonderful cause—the Milk Fund that is in charge of a committee of New York women under the direction of Mrs. William Randolph Hearst. This fund has relieved the hunger of, and given health to more destitute and sickly children than any other similar fund in existence.

Show Is Entitled to Support of Every Fan

The show as arranged by Promoter Tex Rickard figures to net at least $1,000,000 for the fund, and by using your imagination you can get an idea of the great good that can be done with that sum of money. Try to imagine the benefits of five million quarts of milk distributed by an efficient committee and you will realize that the show is entitled to the support of every boxing fan in the country.

Aside from the benefit feature the show will be one of the greatest in the history of the boxing game. Jess Willard is matched with Floyd Johnson and Luis Firpo will meet Jack McAuliffe. Then there are other bouts on the card that are real attractions.

California Will Be Well Represented at Show

There has never been a big boxing event at which California has not had a big representation and I should like to see hundreds of Pacific Coast fans at the ringside May 12.

Dempsey has been invited to referee the main event, in which Jess Willard will meet Floyd Johnson, who got his start in San Francisco. Jim Jeffries, former champion for many years, has been invited to judge, as has Jim Corbett.

So you see it is something of a California show. All it needs to make the setting complete is to have a big delegation of California fans at the ringside.

HARVARD TRACK TEAM STARTS AT WORK

Interest in the track team is at a high pitch over at Harvard this year due to the fact that a combined Harvard-Yale aggregation will invade Great Britain this coming July. About 200 candidates have reported.

Coach Bill Martin will have his first day out-of-doors as Crimson cinder-path mentor. He will have Eddie Farrell on hand as his assistant and will be aided by Janko Mikkola, the Finnish javelin thrower.

Bill Bingham will assist in the coaching as much as he is able.

Among the candidates are Howard, who has turned in 10 1-5 in the century dash, Merrill, who does about 51 seconds in the quarter; Captain Burke and Newhall, who have done 1:57 for the half mile, Burke, Cutcheon in the mile, and Chapin, Lutz and Lund in the two-mile.

Carl Hauers, the intercollegiate high hurdling titlist, is the class of the hurdlers, while Bob Thayer can do about 25 seconds in the low sticks.

Hyatt, the former team-mate of Charlie Paddock at the University of Southern California, is the best high jumper. He has cleared 6 feet 2 inches. Geroulo and Morse are good for about 5 feet 9 inches.

Harry Davis, a former Exeter boy, is the best pole vaulter. He is a consistent 12-foot man. Dave Reidy and Martingale have cleared 11 feet and a half.

There are no broad jumpers of ability on hand.

Greenidge, a finalist in the Intercollegiates, should toss the javelin 175 feet.

Victor Miller and Charlie Carpenter should hover around the 130-foot mark in the discus.

Marshall is the class of the hammer throwers with tosses around 135 feet.

Charlie Eastigan and Heinie Dunkee are the best shot-putters. Eastman improved his puts to about 44 feet.

AUSTRALIA HAS WEAK DAVIS CUP TEAM

By VINCENT RICHARDS

New York, April 2.—The recent selection of J. O. Anderson, Norman Peach, Schlesinger and Sturt as the team that will represent Australia in the Davis cup matches, proves beyond a shadow of a doubt that the "land down under" does not intend to challenge seriously for this famous trophy.

The mere fact that Patterson, Wood, Hawkes and Wertheim have declined places on the team proves the Australian Tennis Association will wait until 1924 before they muster their full quest of the cup.

Not so long after the Australian team arrived home last season after their tour of Europe and America, both Patterson and Wood were quoted as having said: "So long as Tilden and Johnston play in America, then the Davis cup will be safe in that land."

Perhaps it is this theory that has led the Australian Association to select this team that will represent that country in the International play.

At ank rate, of the team that will come here in quest of the International bowl, only Anderson and Peach are known to the fans of this country.

Both were with the team that made the trip last season. J. O. Anderson almost every time that he has played him, we get some idea of the ability of this tall Australian.

Last Winter Anderson won the New Zealand championship from Patterson in five terrific sets. Unfortunately for him he will need a partner in order to take back the famous Davis Cup to the Antipodes, and it cannot see in any of the other three men who will make the trip with him a partner of his own calibre.

With Tilden and Johnston able and ready to defend the famous International trophy, it looks as if America will not be obliged to worry about losing the bowl this season.

Perhaps the real menace will come in 1924 when both Australia and Japan will muster their entire strength in their quest for the much heralded cup.

BOSTON COUNCIL TO HOLD SHOW TONIGHT

If the entries that have been received are a criterion the final open amateur tournament of the season of the Boston Council, K. of C., in Scenic Temple tonight, will be one of the best the club has conducted.

The field is one of the largest that ever competed in an open event around here. Boys who have never been seen around here before, together with many favorites, will battle for the prizes. The show should provide some of the best contests decided in a local ring.

Fighting will be in the 112, 126, 135 and 147-pound classes.

Basketball Game April 28

The winning teams in the Nut Basketball League in Y. M. C. A.s throughout Massachusetts and Rhode Island will meet on April 28 for the finals.

The winning team at the Boston "Y" will be represented by A. J. Feeke, captain; F. L. Lovely, M. Rubin, N. R. Thackerberry, D. G. Martin and B. J. Devine.

Will Hold Horse Show

The Millwood Hunt Club, of Framingham, has added an open air horse show to its program for its big sport day to be held at Waverley Farm, midway between Framingham and Southboro, on Saturday, June 2.

RED SOX SQUAD READY TO START ON THEIR HOMEWARD HIKE

CHANCE BOYS SHOW REAL CLASS WITH PIRATES

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Hot Springs, Ark., April 2.—We are going away from here—the "we" being the Red Sox party and "here" being the sod called Hot Springs. Tomorrow morning, bright and early, the aforesaid "we" will climb aboard the special, which is to take us hither and yon finally to land us in New York for the opening game of the American League season.

And are we happy? Out, Out, we are.

Manager Chance and the Red Sox players are especially pleased. Not only are they happy they are about to depart, the chill winds and often rains of the Ozarks, but they are immensely pleased for leaving it with a victory scrutched on their escutcheon.

It is their 10 to 9 triumph over Pittsburgh that gives them their added portion of pleasure, for it was a victory justly earned and accomplished through brave play and against a ball club as is a ball club.

One could not claim on the showing in that contest that the Red Sox are yet a finished ball club, for there were mental lapses, inexcusable boots and one or two other things that don't done in the diamond circle, so to speak.

Brilliant Play and Timely Clouting There

But also there was brilliant play, timely clouting and a never-say-die demonstration that indicated the stuff is there for a much better organization than has represented the Hub in the American League for lo these several years.

Indication of that stuff came in the first frame of the third and concluding battle with the Bucs. Fewster led off and cracked out a pretty single, was advanced to third by Skinner's single, and, with George Burns, who had forced Skinner, conducted a double steal that produced a very nice looking run.

Most of the Bad Baseball Was in Second

Most of the Sox bad baseball was in the second inning, when neglect of the pitcher to cover first, three rather glaring errors, three scratch hits and one sure-enough double, combined gave the Pirates five runs and a four-point lead.

Promptly there was a return of good baseball on the part of the "Long Chances." In the third frame, this was evidenced in a double, two singles and a home run with a base on balls thrown in, which gave back to the Sox their one run lead. And although the Pirates once again tied the score, it was the Red Sox game from then on, with brilliant playing in the field and timely hitting at the plate.

Final Seizure Failed to Carry the Pirates Fest

Against weakened pitching in the final frames the Bucs did make a splurge, but it failed to carry them past the conquering "Long Chances."

Ole "Jack" Quinn did the bulk of the twirling, six of the nine innings—and was going better than ever when the Peerless One ordered him to make way for Alec Ferguson.

Jack looked to be ready for full nine inning game, which is going pretty good for a man who is now in his twenty-third year of big league baseball.

Fergy's control was not quite what it should have been, and it was that which kept him and the Red Sox in hot water during the latter portion of the fray.

The timely swatters were Shauno Collins, George Burns, Norman McMillan, Howard Shanks and Al Devormer. McMillan with over the right field fence home run, sent Burns and Harris home ahead of him in the third. Shanks with three on in the fifth rapped the stiffest clout of the day, which would have been a homer had not the centre field fence tossed the ball back to the Pirate infielder.

The blow cleared the bases and put the Red Sox in the way of victory. Devormer's prize whack was another homer over the right field wall, which as it proved, gave the Chances their winning margin.

Only Real Weakness Disclosed Was at Third

As the team played in that battle it disclosed but one real weakness that at third base, where Joe "Slug" Harris officiated. "Slug" can hit that ball and play a fair game in the outfield but he is not a finished third sacker and shows little indication of becoming one.

Whether Chance will strive to develop him remains to be seen. Naturally he would like to retain "Slug's" hitting strength, but indications are that Clark Pittenger, or Johnny Mitchell, or possibly Howard Shanks, all of whom are naturally better infielders than "Slug," will be given much work at that post during the barnstorming voyage which starts tomorrow.

BRAVES HAVE ANOTHER WEEK AT ST. PETE

By NICK FLATLEY.

St. Petersburg, April 2.—The last week of training here for the Braves will not be any picnic, as many of the boys imagined. Our sterling young athletes will have their two drills a day, except when games are scheduled, which happens only twice.

Manager Mitchell tried out the one-a-day system and likes the other best. One long workout he claims tires the men out too much. A couple of short ones never get them dead weary and pack in more exercise. Which is good enough logic.

The Braves, this year, haven't worked as hard as they did last season, when in our humble opinion they rather over did the thing. They will not leave here run down and dead, as they seemed to be then. Their workouts have been shorter and they haven't been stacked up against such real hard muscle tearing stuff.

The benefits of the change are apparent. All except the few cripples are in good shape and happy. That's always the type of a winning ball club. When you hear the boys warbling in the clubhouse, you can just about decide that things are going along all right. Baseball is working away from the idea that a team should go into its opening series, as boiled down as it should be for the October wind-up.

Only Three or Four Minor Casuals in Ranks

There are only three or four minor casuals in the ranks. Nixon's toe comes out of the cast Wednesday. Larry Benton, who wrenched his side, will be allowed to work again lightly about the same day. Miller and Lansing report progress with their arm wings although neither has been able to hang everything on the ball yet.

Fillingim, always a slow starter, has been held back by a cold, which affected his strength, but he has shaken it, and his arm is working out well. Being one of the few really good spit-ballers left, he's being nursed along very gently.

Will Try to Get Revenge on Indians

The team plays the Indians here tomorrow and will try to get revenge for the licking Saturday. Which was merely a matter of a couple of outfield errors. The boys have been chasing flies in the sandy garden here, and are a bit strange on a spring pasture. But that will wear off as soon as the journey North begins.

The Senators, who will be played on the trip North, engage the Tribe Saturday over at Tampa. Sec Riley tried to have the game played here, but couldn't do anything about it.

Road Trip With the Senators Will Start

The squad breaks camp Sunday and will go to Savannah, where the road trip with Washington officially starts. The clubs play seven games in all, going North, winding up with a pair in Washington. After that the Braves go home to play Boston College before opening the season.

Captain Will Southworth, as well as the Brave veterans, believes that the team this year is far and away stronger than the 1922 Spring outfit, which was looked on as a pennant contender.

Captain Billy Says the Club Is Strong

"We haven't been winning," Will explains, "but we have a mighty good ball club just the same. There's plenty of regular strength and a lot of substitute material, which was missing a year ago, and we can't have as many accidents as we did before. That just couldn't happen twice.

STAR BOXERS TO HELP CHARITY RING SHOW

With the largest number of glove men and vaudeville entertainers ever staged at one show, Scenic Temple is sure to be packed when the Western Union A. A. starts its big charity show tomorrow night. Forty-four boxers, the cream of the professional world, have volunteered their services, including such stars as Pat McCarthy, Nate Seigel, Red Chapman, Sailor Byron, George Robinson, Willie Gradwell, Young Tansey, Billy Woods, Paddy Owens, Battling McCreery, Lee Anderson and boys of this high grade calibre.

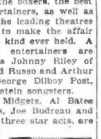
Pat McCarthy

In addition to the boxers, the best of the local entertainers, as well as top liners from the leading theatres will be on hand to make the affair the biggest of its kind ever held. A few of the local entertainers are such favorites as Johnny Riley of Charlestown, Fred Russo and Arthur Dionne of the George Dilboy Post, and Shapiro-Bernstein songsters.

The Montreal Midgets, Al Bates and Ray Simonds, Joe Budreau and "Boso" Laverdin, three star acts, are also on the card.

The price of admission is but $1. Tickets can be obtained at any Western Union office, or at the Scenic Temple tomorrow.

One section of the hall has been reserved for ladies, many of whom have signified their intention of attending.



Young Tansey

Johnny Wilson, middleweight champion, George Freeman and Jack Sheehan will referee, while Gus Daly will do the announcing. Frank McGrath has volunteered to keep time.

Rogues Gallery System to Halt Fake Fights

Portland, Ore., April 2.—Civic officials here have just put into force a rule requiring that all fistic exponents upon arrival at police headquarters to be photographed and have their finger prints taken.

Discussing his order, Chief of Police Jenkins declared:

"Portland no longer will tolerate general migration here of the worst elements in the fistic world. We are going to get rid of the dregs which have drifted into our city.

"In ordering the fighters, their managers and those connected with fistic expeditions must be photographed and finger-printed, we are not starting any rogues gallery. But what we are doing is protecting this city and boxing from irresponsible or criminal members of the boxing profession."

OPEN SWIMMING MEET FOR WOMEN

Many of New England's cleverest mermaids will participate in the first open women's swimming meet of Cabot street, Roxbury, municipal baths on Thursday evening.

Several novelty events including rescue races and fancy swimming are on the program. Admission is free and tickets may be obtained from the instructors at the baths.

Among the clever swimmers already entered for the various events are Olive Holland, N. E. A. A. U. diving champion; Ellen Lundgren, Mabel Mangler, Mary McArdle, Ione Muir, Essie Harrison, Muriel Thayer, Esther Spargo, Berine Adair, Wilma Nelson, Stella Ross, Mildred Adair, Katherine McArdle, Katheryne McKenzie, Mabel Snodgrass, Violet Foster and Mary Matz.

The open events are 100 yards breast stroke championship and fancy diving.

Those who form the committee in charge are Ben Levias of the N. E. A. A. U., James Walsh of the Boston Park Department and Harry Granger of Cabot Street Baths.

ENGLISH HIGH SHOULD HAVE STRONG NINE

By FRED C. LANE.

Rooters for English High predict a big year for the Blue and Blue baseball squad this season. They have reason to feel that way if the turnout of new candidates may be taken as a criterion.

This year's response to the call for candidates is the largest in years. Coach Fred Murrey will have the assistance of two former baseball stars now teachers at the Montgomery street school.

Steve "Doc" White, former big league pitcher and recently coach at Swampscott High, will drill the boxmen. John "Dutchy" Ward will give his time to build up a strong outfield.

This will allow Coach Murray to round out the infield. English was weak in that respect last year and the low standing in the league is attributed to that weakness.

In addition to the new candidates, of whom there are about sixty-five, there will be thirteen veterans from last year's team. Several were subs in the 1922 campaign and now seek regular berths.

Leon A. Parker and Malcolm B. Whitehead are two catchers from last season's team. Arthur "Porky" Flynn and Art Smith are the veteran boxmen. Arthur Morton, Paul Cummings and Joe Cumfrey are experienced infielders. Only two outfielders who played last year are on hand. They are Mike Duran and Arthur Cooperstein.

John Boyle, Guy Taschetta, Bernard Gack and Henry Chandler are the subs of last year. The most promising of the candidates who worked out in the gym are George McMahon, Wilhelm Schiller, John Whittaker, Herbert Pickard, Louis Feinstein. They are seeking honors as pitchers.

Phillip Weinberg, Elias Lichenstein, Ellis Alaner and David Arthur aspire to be catchers. The infield prospects are Charlie Ferguson, Bernard Gack, Isadore Kopow, Nathan Barrows and Francis Halloran. The outfielders who reported are George Horwood and George Foote.

The Strandway has been the training ground for previous English High teams, but owing to the changes under way at the South Boston park, the teams' practices must be had on some other lot. So large is the squad that there are not enough uniforms to go round. Owing to the cold weather the team has not been able to play outdoors.

Just as soon as the weather improves Coach Murrey will start welding his pruning knife and get the rest of the squad in condition for the first game with Groton on April 14 at Groton.

VOGEL IS OUT TO TOSS GREEK

Karl Vogel, great German wrestler, will try to throw George Kotsonaros, Greek champion, when they battle in a finish mat bout, best two falls out of three, at the Old Howard's show at the Grand Opera House on Thursday night.

George Kotsonaros

Vogel tossed Nat Pendleton, Olympic champion, in five minutes. All of which attests to his class.

If Vogel wins over Kotsonaros he will be in line to get some lucrative matches. Kotsonaros, however, is determined to gain the award and then force George Calza into a meeting.

Stanley Stasiak, Polish champion, and Farmer Bailey, strongest man in the wrestling game, will clash in another finish bout. Bailey is 250 pounds and a good match for Stasiak.

A third bout will find A. Risso, Italian grappler, opposed by Frank Lurich of Cambridge.

TICKETS FOR BONEHEAD STORIES GOING FAST

The 300 tickets are dwindling fast. If you want to see the opening game of the Braves or Red Sox, you'd better send in your contribution to the Bonehead Contest NOW.

So far, as you will see by skimming over the Box Scores, 53 readers have won tickets. That leaves only 232 left to be awarded.

Keep 'em short, Bonies. And write legibly.

ALBERT FAIRWEATHER, 270 Lexington street, East Boston:

"An Italian friend of mine bought a small lot on the Public gardens at Arlington and Boylston streets. He bought the lumber to build a fruit stand, and was actually engaged in the construction of the stand when a policeman told him he had been tabbed for a Bonehead."

A. THEODORE KINGSBURY, 47 Judson street, Roxbury:

"Mr. Marlowe of New York, the gent who paid $50,000 to get the management of Johnnie Wilson, in my opinion deserves the celluloid poker."

JOHN HOUGHTON, 1 Mason street, Hudson:

"In an administration replete with boners, Harding pulled his masterpiece when he said the coal situation in New England was 'purely psychological.'"

ROY C. CLARK, 82 Summer street, Boston:

"The Nantasket Beach Fire will bring to light a bunch of Boneheads —guys who left their stock of choice liquors in their cottages over Winter. They'll have a dry Summer."

JOHN F. LYNCH, 111 Graham street, Quincy:

"The Wall Street sharks caught short on Piggly Wiggly by the 'Rube from Tennessee' take the ivory domepiece."

JACK COTTER, 69 West Forrest street, Lowell:

"On the night of January 28 I went to an informal dancing party. I danced three fox trots and then found out I hadn't removed my rubbers."

SAMUEL BENT, JR., 138 Tennyson street, Somerville:

"On receiving my pay envelope last week I tore the end off and threw the enclosed pay check in the waste basket. I carefully folded up the envelope and placed it in my wallet. If you don't think I'm a Bonehead you ought to have heard what my wife said."

Others to whom a ticket will be mailed, but whose "boners" are not printed because of lack of space, are:

Fall River Wins Easily

Fall River, April 2.—The Fall River soccer team easily defeated the Grand Trunk football club of Montreal, champions of the Dominion, 4 to 1. The Fall River club toyed with the visitors after the first few minutes of play.

Kershaw, formerly of Abbot Worsted, was the star for the locals with three goals.

SHAWMUT ELEVEN IS LOOKING FOR GAMES

The Shawmut F. E. soccer team of Fall River seeks a chance to play with any of the best teams in Greater Boston. Gray & Davis is one of the teams preferred.

The Fall River boys require a reasonable guarantee for any Saturday, Indoor or outdoor. Should any of the Greater Boston teams desire action they may communicate with Peter M. Farla, No. 895 Bedman street, Fall River.

SCOTT HAS LETTER FOR HIS SWIMMING

Amherst, April 2.—H. O. Scott was awarded a minor letter for swimming at Amherst. This was his second year as a member of the Amherst swimming team and he was a consistent scorer in the 100-yard breast stroke. He is a junior and will be on hand again next year. Scott comes from Auburndale, and prepared for Amherst at Newtonville High School.

DAVIS, IN HUB, STARTS BOOM FOR HARDING

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis came to Boston from Washington today and fired one of the opening guns of the Republican presidential campaign.

"President Harding is probably the poorest advertiser in the United States today," Secretary Davis said. "The smallest corner grocer in Boston could undoubtedly give him a big handicap and then beat him at the game of getting himself 'sold' to the public. President Harding works at his job—he doesn't talk about it."

Davis said Mr. Harding's plans "seem to be worrying many of our people," and that every newspaper man he had talked to for the past month or more had wanted to know that they were.

"Well," he went on, "I'll tell you some things about the President.

"When I have sought to point out that there is a campaign in 1924 coming and that a little advertising for the administration would do no harm he has told me that he is no show man, not a stage director. He holds that his work must be judged by the results and that the people must judge the results for themselves. Just between you and me, President Harding is not bothering his head over much about politics of 1924. He is spending his time working for the people of the United States."

Secretary Davis reviewed the problems which confronted President Harding when he assumed office and pointed out the accomplishments of the administration in domestic and international affairs during the past two years. He was of the opinion "that those who would attack the President would face a difficult task."

Plans for Patriots' Week Interest Hub Society, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN

IF the thousand and one entertainments planned for Patriots' Week don't net a nice, fat, tidy sum for the coffers of the Army and Navy Club, it won't be the fault of the Army and Navy Service Committee, Inc., which has set aside the week of April 16 for that purpose.

The program which the committee has planned for that week fairly bristles with activity. Both in Boston and the vicinity there will be a lot of sales—food sales, flower sales, candy sales and rummage sales; then there'll be card parties, cabarets, not only in Boston but in the suburbs and neighboring towns.

The week promises to open in a lively manner with the benefit performance of "The Fool" on Monday evening, April 16. A lot of the most imposing dignitaries of the army and navy have promised to be there, as well as a host of local society folk. Later in the week there will be a parade and tag day.

Mrs. Andre W. Brewster, Mrs. Henry A. Wiley and Mrs. Walter M. Pratt comprise the trio of chairmen in charge of arrangements. The vice-chairmen are Mrs. Bayard Thayer, Mrs. Charlie, Mrs. Arthur T. Maris and Mrs. John P. Feeney, while the committee includes such prominent matrons as Mesdames Franklin W. Hobbs, Thorndike D. Howe, Alanson Daniels, Horace Morison, Benjamin F. Pitman, Frederick S. Blodgett, Robert J. Clark, Frederick S. Whitwell, C. Sinclair Weeks, Willis Shepard, Robert C. Morse, H. Addington Bruce, William A. Gaston and Wayland Minot.

MRS. SAMUEL DENNIS WARREN of No. 261 Marlboro street is giving a reception on Thursday afternoon for Miss Eleanor Doddridge Brannan of New York, who is organizing in Massachusetts for the woman's party, and will speak on the equal rights movement. Mrs. Warren expects also to have with her her sister, Mrs. Florence Bayard Hilles of Wilmington, who will tell about the legislative work she has been carrying on.

MRS. HOWARD COONLEY and her son, John C. Cooley of Boston have been staying for a few days in New York at the Ritz-Carlton.

I EXPECT that a goodly contingent of Boston's young blades will go down to Providence on Friday evening for the dance which the Bachelors of Providence are holding that night at the Hotel Biltmore.

Francis M. Weld, who graduated from Harvard with the class of '17 and who's been working for about a year in the Rhode Island city, has invited the "eligibles" of the Hub down for the occasion, the latter including such men as Amory and Jeff Coolidge, Francis Brooks and Charles Cotting.

Speaking of Jefferson Coolidge, I understand that he is leaving shortly for a business trip abroad.

MRS. NATHANIEL S. SIMPKINS, who spent the Winter in the South, is stopping in Washington for a while on her return North. During her absence her son and daughter-in-law, the John Simpkins (Miriam Fenno) occupied the Simpkins place at Beverly Farms.

Mrs. Walter M. Pratt, together with Mrs. Andre W. Brewster and Mrs. Henry A. Wiley, head the committee in charge of Patriots' Week, set aside to raise funds for the Army and Navy Club.

WOMEN TO DRIVE NEW YORK TAXIS

New York, April 2.—The chauffeuse—twelve of them—will appear on the streets of New York in a few days, occupying the drivers' seats of as many taxicabs, but for the patronage only of their own sex.

The news came today from the president of a taxi corporation. He said many women never used a taxi because they feared a strange chauffeur, and he was convinced a new field was being overlooked.

The chauffeuse will be paid from $40 to $50 a week.

COLD WAVE COMING BACK LATE IN WEEK

Do not pack away the Winter benny for another cold wave is due to hit here the middle or latter part of the week, according to the dope of the weather man. Meanwhile tonight and tomorrow will be fair with slowly rising temperatures and fresh south to southwest winds.

MAN DIES IN FIRE RESCUING COWS

Salem, April 2.—Joseph Pulletka, thirty-six, was burned to death when two sheds on Peabody street, off the Topsfield road, in Ipswich, were destroyed by a fire early today.

Pulletka slept in one of the sheds housing four cows. He evidently was trying to rescue the cows when overcome by smoke. Searchers found his body pinned beneath one of the dead cows.

In a third shack was found a still and a quantity of moonshine.

FINED $75 FOR NOT SUPPLYING HEAT

Charles E. Butler, manager of the apartment house at No. 41 Astor street, was fined $75 by Judge Hayden in Roxbury Court today for failure to furnish sufficient heat for his tenants. Judge Hayden scored Butler when passing sentence and declared that there were many repairs needed.

COPS CAN GUESS AT WOMAN'S AGE WHILE LISTING

Annual police listing of all persons in Boston twenty years old or more, except paupers, insane and criminals, began today. It will take about a week. The information is for the compilation of voting lists.

Women who refuse to tell their age will thereby put the proposition up to the listing officer and he will make the best guess he can.

The guidance is pretty well used to police listing by this time but officers will encounter some difficulties, especially in sections with a large percentage of foreigners.

Where the person to be listed does not speak English the officer will get any handy interpreter he can find, or, if necessary, he will be provided with one.

Every man available for the force of more than 1,800 is on the listing job. They make the rounds of dwellings, apartment houses, business offices, manufacturing establishments, hospitals, garages, stables and so on.

It is a great convenience to the police if the head of the family makes out a written list, giving the required information accurately and concisely, the names of every person, male or female, in the house who is twenty years old or more.

HE HID $90 IN CHAIR; NOW IT'S GONE

Two larcenies were reported to the Waltham police today. Mrs. Annie Chamberlain said she had placed $90 in a chair for safe keeping. Some one found the hiding place and took the money. H. O. Nelson informed the police that some one had stolen a big basket of silver plate while he was moving in a new house on Stowe street. This was worth several hundred dollars.

STRIKE FOR $1 HOUR TO CARRY THE HOD

Brockton, April 2.—Brockton's building laborers or hod carriers, insufficient numbers to tie up all big building jobs under way and many new jobs due to start today, are on strike to enforce a demand for $1 per hour against their old wage of seventy-two cents. The master masons offered seventy-five cents.

"Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in Boston for week ending Saturday, March 31st, on shipments sold out, ranged from 9.00 cents to 14.75 cents per pound and averaged 13.39 cents per pound."—Advt.

GERMAN OPERA TROUPE COMES TO BOSTON

The first opera to be given in Boston since the World War by a German opera company will be given in the Opera House tonight, when the Wagnerian Festival Opera Company will present "Die Meistersinger."

The company, which arrived in America in December, came to Boston from New York, bringing eight cars of scenery and two carloads of personal baggage and will remain two weeks.

A group of very human persons is the Wagnerian Festival Opera Company. Incidents such as happen to John and Mary, George and Edna, persons you know, also happen to members of the famous opera company. In the hustle and bustle of packing, Mme. Metzger-Lattermann, famous guest artiste, forgot her canary—it's a little more like home when one has one's canary with one, you know—and a special messenger was sent back to New York for the missing pet.

Theodore Lattermann, general stage director and baritone, exhibits with pride his favorite home-brew recipe. He says it's a good one.

J. D.'S STOCK UP $104,201,000 IN ONE YEAR

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, April 2.—John D. Rockefeller's one-sixth holdings in nine Standard Oil Co subsidiaries have increased in value $104,201,000 within the past year, owing to declaration of stock dividends and market appreciation of his shares, a tabulation showed today. A previous tabulation showed his income from his holdings totalled roughly $12,000,000 last year before paying Federal taxes.

The compilation brings out the fact that the market appreciation in his holdings added more than eight times the amount to his wealth than did the dividend income.

The chief appreciation in value was in Standard Oil of New York, wherein his 24.9 per cent. of all outstanding stock of that company went up in value $37,323,000. The second largest appreciation was in Standard Oil of California, wherein his 23.4 per cent. holdings advanced in value by $16,939,000.

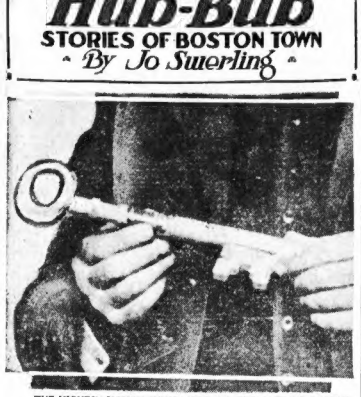
STORIES OF BOSTON TOWN

By Jo Swerling



THE HIGHEST HONOR CONFERRED BY THE CITY OF BOSTON is a presentation of the Key to the City. Here's the key, in the hands of Mayor Curley. Who has received it since Mr. Curley assumed office?

A KEY TO THE CITY

A banquet was in progress in an actors' club in New York. Will Rogers was the toastmaster. He got up to introduce the next speaker. Will spoke up after the preliminary spread-eagling.

"I take particular pleasure in introducing this man. He is the only actor in America who hasn't gotten a key to the city of Boston."

Possibly a bit of exaggeration. But it inspired in this reporter a desire to investigate. Who has been given a key to the city of Boston? A roster of the celebrated company has never before been printed.

France has its Academie Francaise. America has its Hall of Fame. Boston has its Key Ring.

In the French Academy are names that sing—Anatole France, Pierre Loti, Henri Bergson, Alexandre Ribot, Jean Richepin, Raymond Poincare, Eugene Brieux, Marcel Prevost, Paul Bourget, Edmond Rostand.

Great men fill the niches in the American Hall of Fame—such noteworthies as Edgar Allen Poe, George Washington, U. S. Grant, Robert Fulton, Horace Mann, Mark Twain, Augustus Saint-Gaudens, Lucis Agassiz, Patrick Henry.

Immortals on Boston Key Ring

Who, then, are the immortals of Boston's Key Ring? Let us peep into the files.

In the affections of Mayor Curley the people of show business seem to take first rank. Eubie Blake and J. A. Sissler each has a key to the city. Messrs. Blake and Sissler are the negro actors featured in the never-to-be-forgotten contribution to Art in America, "Shuffle Along." If that doesn't identify them, let it be known that they wrote the song hit of the show—"I'm Just Wild About Harry."

Miss Dupont boasts a key. Who? You don't know her? Then you didn't see "Wild Wives." She was starred. A key was handed to Jake Rosenthal. Jake's a press agent—the best known press agent in the country. Makes a show run two weeks where it ought to run one. And not only Jake, but his son, Jack Osterman, got a key. Jack's the youngest member of the Key Ring—not yet twenty-one. Knockin' 'em cold on the Orpheum as these words are written.

The major gave a key to John Golden, who produced "Lightnin'." Percy Pollock, who plays the leading role, also got a key. A key was handed to Cecil Sorel, the French actress; George M. Cohan, creator of "Nellie Kelly," "The O'Brien Girl" and—coming to the Tremont Theatre in a few weeks—"The Rise of Rosy O'Riley"; Jack Donnahue, the star of "Molly Darling"; Harry Lauder, George Arliss, George H. Brennan (Arliss' manager); Marcus Loew, Barney Fagan, Channing Pollock (author of "The Fool"); Harrison Hunter (of "The Bat"), and D. W. Griffith.

Baseball was not slighted. John W. Heydler of the National League, and Christy Mathewson got keys. John McCormack, the singer, boasts a key. Mayors of other cities were given the freedom of the city—notably William Hale Thompson of Chicago and Thomas F. Aldrich of Raleigh, N. C.

Nero a Poet Or Musician

The balance of the list includes one Judge, one alderman, a former chairman of the National Democratic Committee, a former Governor of Oklahoma, the exalted ruler of the Colored Elks, one French military attache, the Republican leader in the State of Maryland, a captain in the United States navy, the grand exalted ruler of the Elks (white), one newspaperman, the fiscal representative of the Chicago Grand Opera, a delegate from the American Hotel Association, a merchant of Japan, a general manager of the Bethlehem Steel Company, a delegation representing the Municipal Commission of St. Louis and another from the Chicago Board of Aldermen.

Barring Pollock, not a single writer of note. Not a single sculptor. Not a painter. Not one poet. Not a musician.

All of which is respectfully referred to George Jean Nathan and H. L. Mencken, who may wish to point a moral, if there is a moral.

FIN. COM. SCORE INSPECTION OF PAVING

The Finance Commission rapped city inspection of bituminous paving jobs today. The commission said the city is short of men who know how to look after such jobs properly.

These shots were in connection with the sheet asphalt paving of the southerly side of Huntington avenue between Hemenway and Tremont streets. The report of commission consulting engineer says:

"Under the present policy of the paving service, inspection of bituminous pavements is of little or no value. The results depend almost entirely on the honesty and skill of the contractor.

"It is a fact that there are in the city's force very few, perhaps not more than two or three, inspectors who are competent to supervise the construction of bituminous pavements.

"The essential points, however, are not hard to learn and, if properly instructed, there is no reason why efficient inspection should not be obtained from the present force. These men, however, must be suitably instructed and supported by their superiors."

The commission's summary says but "Aside from the defects occurring because of improper planning and coordination of the paving between the street car tracks and the street itself, the paving has withstood the weather and traffic of the past Winter without apparent injury."

WANTS HIS WIFE TO RETURN FURNITURE

When Mrs. Mary A. Rogers of No. 74 Richwood street, began separation proceedings against Frank M. Rogers she proceeded to remove his furniture as well as her own belongings from their house, her husband alleges in a bill in equity filed in Superior Court today. He seeks to restrain her from taking any more of the furniture and asks that she account for articles already removed. Rogers was granted a hearing April 4.

WOMAN IS BURNED BY GAS EXPLOSION

Mrs. Mary Smith, a widow seventy-four years old, was terribly burned on hands, face and body today when a can of kerosene oil which she was using to start a fire in the kitchen stove at her home, No. 160 Suffolk street, Chelsea, exploded. Neighbors who heard her screams found her on the kitchen floor with nearly all her clothing burned off. She was taken to Chelsea Memorial Hospital.

BILL HART IS ACCUSED OF CRUELTY

DECLARES HART WAS JEALOUS

Miss MacCauley Tells How Screen Star Suspected He Had Rival

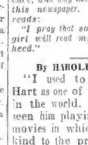
With this instalment Elizabeth MacCauley ends the story of her romance with Bill Hart, the screen actor, as told to Harold R. Hall of the Boston American. In the concluding paragraph of the story tells why she related her experience, and why they were printed in this newspaper. That paragraph reads:

"I pray that some little trusting girl will read my story and take heed."

By HAROLD R. HALL.

"I used to think of Bill Hart as one of the kindest men in the world. I had always seen him playing parts in the movies in which he was very kind to the pretty heroines. I thought he must be the same in real life.

"I was sadly disappointed. I discovered that Bill was cruel; terribly cruel. And worse than that, I discovered that Bill was jealous. I found him just like any other man—willing to take all he could get, but unwilling for the woman to even look at another man.



Miss Elizabeth MacCauley

"I discovered it not long after I met him in Los Angeles. It was a shock to me, but I forgave him at that time and let it pass.

"I was living in a house out there with two other women at the time of my visits to Bill's apartment. I discovered that one of the women had had an unfortunate affair with another screen star. She was in trouble and I tried to comfort her. She told me such a sensational story that I felt that it would be better for us to tell Bill about my living at the same house with her. I also thought who not to tell her of her friend's delight with Bill. She was evident that I feared she would make any miserable by trying to picture Bill in the same light as the man she had met.

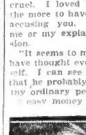
"One night Bill called me on the telephone. He started asking me questions which I could not very well answer without revealing who it was to anyone in the room. My friend was sitting right by my side at the time, and so I tried to evade the answers and put Bill off. He could not seem to understand that I was driving at, and I could not very well tell him.

"Well, the next night when I went to Bill's apartment he was wild. As soon as I arrived he accused me of having another man at my apartment. I tried to tell him then about the woman living there and of her troubles. I tried to tell him that she was present, and for that reason I could not answer his questions on the phone.

NEVER BELIEVED HER.

"He stormed around the apartment, accusing me of all sorts of things. He was insulting and oh, so cruel. I tried to tell Bill that it hurt all the more to have the man you loved accusing you. He never believed me or my explanation of that occasion.

"It seems to me now that he must have had everyone watching him. Well, I can see now as I look back that he probably thought I was like my ordinary person who was seeking money from a screen star.



William S. Hart

"He probably thought that I was like I found him to be—a person with many conquests. Well, he was mistaken.

"He even brought up that evening when I was in Los Angeles telling my story before the district attorney at the time I forced him to help support our boy. He accused me then of going around with another man. That telephone conversation had still stuck in his mind, and he, like a big coward, attempted to use it. He is a coward—just a big, cruel coward.

"To show you how cruel he is just listen to this. When I went back to Los Angeles to try and make him admit paternity of the child I took my baby with me. I reached Los Angeles and called him on the telephone. All the old love for him returned in a moment when I heard him answer the telephone.

HUNG UP RECEIVER.

"I was overjoyed to hear him. I thought that at last I would have a chance to see him and show him our baby and talk the matter over in a friendly way. I asked him if he remembered me after telling him my name. 'How can I ever forget you,' he answered. I thought I had won, but nearly fainted when he immediately hung up the receiver and refused to talk to me again.

"Although I was heart broken and had about given up hope, I tried just once more. When Bill came to the district attorney's office to meet me and tell his story to the district attorney, I took our baby along to show him. I left the baby in the next room. I asked him to go in and look at it. He believed out something terrible about not wanting to see it and refused to even take one peep at our little darling. Then he called me a blackmailer and other vile names. Oh, it hurt. But I have lived through it.

"I pray that some little trusting girl will read my story and take heed."

(The End.)

1,543,406 Pupils Have $14,144,000 in U. S. Banks

New York, April 2.—Reports just compiled by the Savings Bank Division of the American Bankers' Association show that the number of pupils having school savings accounts in the United States on January 31, was 1,543,406.

The total savings during the present school year up to January 31 amounted to $14,157,000, and the total balances in all pupils' accounts was $14,144,000.

DREAMS END AS BOY IS BARRED

Frank Lawton, Quincy shipwright, received a blow today from the immigration laws. His wife and little boy came over from England to the home he had prepared for them. But the boy is barred as a hopeless invalid and the mother must go back with him. Final decision was rendered today by a special board of inquiry.

Lawton, ambitious for his family, came over to this country a few months ago because work was dull in British shipyards. He quickly found a job at Fore River. He sent for his wife and six-year-old boy, who arrived Wednesday on the Aurania.

But the boy's condition made him ineligible for admission to this country. The mother is barred under the "accompanying alien" clause.

In order to be with his family Lawton must abandon the job and home he had obtained here. The money across the water had been broken up.

POLICE INVESTIGATE BLAZE IN REVERE

Investigation is being made into the cause of a fire which destroyed the two-story house at No. 21 Bryant street, Revere, occupied by Michael N. Gravelosse. Fire Chief Arthur H. Kimball says the fire was set. It was discovered while the Gravelosse family was away from home. Patrolman John P. Starkey reported to Revere Police Chief Dyer that he found traces of kerosene and a newspaper torch in the basement. The Gavelosse family, the police say, was burned out a year ago when living in another part of Revere.

FEAR BIG BUILDING STRIKE

Efforts to Balk Tieup Are Rushed as Painters Defer Walkout One Week

The painters' strike, scheduled to start today, has been postponed for a week at least. Strong pressure is being brought to avert it entirely, as it is feared complications from such a strike might precipitate a general tie-up of the building trades.

This would be a calamity, it was pointed out today. In the face of the present building boom in Boston. Nobody appeared anxious for a repetion of the eighteen-months lockout of 1921 when building operations here were at a standstill.

WILL PRESS DEMANDS.

But Sunday's mass meeting, attended by 2,000 members of the four local painters' unions, showed they were determined to press their demands for a wage increase.

On agreeing to a postponement Locals 11, 796, 402 and 933 Instructed their representatives at Wednesday's conference to hold out for the original demands.

SEEK TO AVERT TIEUP.

Mayor Curley will meet representatives of the Building Trades Employers' Association and of the four house painters' locals and each trade affiliated with the United Building Trades' Council in an effort to affect an amicable agreement and avert the house painters' strike and danger of a general tieup.

The house painters demand $1.12½ an hour. The plumbers, electricians, iron workers and other allied crafts make similar demands. It can be seen therefore, that the interest of upward of 27,000 building mechanics will be centred on Wednesday's conference at City Hall.

MANY AT FUNERAL OF JOHN QUINLAN

A score of priests, professional and business men attended the funeral today of John Quinlan, Hyde Park, father of the Rev. Walter A. Quinlan, of any of the Angels Church, Roxbury. Mr. Quinlan died suddenly in the Church of the Most Precious Blood. The mass was said at that church today. Rev. Edward J. Fraher, was celebrant.

The bearers were Dr. David E. Hanlon, Dr. Charles F. Stack, David W. Murray, F. Peter McGrath, Thomas F. Galvin, James McGrath, Francis Donovan and Edwin Sheehan.

OBJECTS TO STABLE AS A DANCE HALL

Suit to restrain Rita Riseman from converting a stable on her property at Warren and Gaston streets, Roxbury, into a public dance hall was filed today in Superior Court by Nathan Canter of No. 8 Gaston street. Canter asserts the aggravation of jarring dance music and the boisterousness resulting from public dances should be prohibited. Alterations have already been made on a permit from the building commissioner, although a permit was previously refused Mrs. Riseman by Mayor Curley.

PRICES STAY UP AT BOSTON FISH PIER

The usual post-Lenten slump failed to materialize at the Fish Pier today. Low receipts kept prices high, steak cod being quoted at 9½ cents, market cod at 8¢ cents, pollock 9¢ cents and hake 9 cents. The steam trawler Snipe, with 170,000 pounds and three schooners with a total catch of 84,000 pounds were the only vessels to arrive.

MADE SICK BY LOVE, NOT IODINE

East Milton girl hurries to parents of her sweetheart, Walter Chatel, when she hears he was taken to the Relief Hospital suffering from iodine poisoning. He declared he took it because "she gave him the gate." But physicians can find no trace of iodine, so they are taking him to City Hospital to determine whether he is suffering from mental or love sickness. The girl declares she loves him.

HAZEL HARTE AND WALTER CHATEL

OPEN HEARING ON $5,000,000 BANK SUIT

Hearings on a suit of Joseph C. Allen, Bank Commissioner, to recover $5,000,000 from directors of the defunct Cosmopolitan Trust Company began today before Master Fletcher Rainey.

Although thirteen men are named as respondents, it is believed the testimony will centre around Miss Mitchell, president of the trust company.

"There is no allegation of criminality on Mitchell's part," Frank N. Nay, counsel for the Bank Commissioner, say in outlining his case, "but something along that line may be developed in the course of this hearing."

Losses aggregating $5,000,000 are said to have been sustained as a result of gross and repeated negligence on the part of the directors in making loans and investments.

"Many loans of a speculative nature were made," Nay said, "and some of the directors, if not all, knew of them. It is not claimed all the directors are equally liable for the losses."

The respondents, besides Mitchell, are: Patrick J. Bergin, Rocco Brindisi, Edward C. Donnelly, Michael J. Jordan, Patrick F. O'Keefe, Raymond H. Overson, Benjamin A. Prager, Gabriel Stabile, Patrick B. Magrane, Hiram J. Potter and Silas Pierce (deceased).

An imposing array of legal counsel represents them, including Sherman L. Whipple, Robert G. Dodge and Damon E. Hall.

PANTALONE IN FIGHT OVER COAT AND VEST

It was a coat and vest that caused all the trouble for Fred Pantalone. He hung them on Salvatore Di Nocco's side of the room. This caused a word battle that led to a knife fight. Both were badly cut. Both were arrested. Each refused to testify against his friend. They were fined $10 each for disturbing the peace. They room together at No. 32 Crawford street, Watertown.

FIND NO TRACE OF POISON ON LOVE-SICK BOY

Walter Chatel, nineteen-year-old Cambridge youth, will be taken from the Relief Station to the City Hospital, where doctors will endeavor to learn if the lad is suffering from mental or love sickness.

Walter was taken to the Relief Station after he had collapsed on a train this morning while returning from a visit to his sweetheart, Hazel A. Harte of East Milton. He said he had swallowed iodine.

"She gave me the gate," Walter told a sympathetic nurse, "so life wasn't worth living."

When Hazel was notified she took the first train for Boston and went to the home of Walter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Chatel, at No. 26 Webster avenue, Cambridge.

"I can't understand it," said Hazel to a reporter for the Boston American, "I love Walter more than any boy I have ever known. Why, I'd marry him this minute if he were here.

"Walter seemed to be feeling fine all the time he was at our house Sunday and was as happy as he could be when he left. He has been sick and I am afraid he went out of his head for a time. But I certainly didn't throw him over, or even fight with him—I love him too much."

Mr. Chatel explained that Walter has been sick and has had peculiar spells at times. "The doctor told us it was probably caused by high blood pressure," he said. "I don't believe the boy would try to kill himself."

Doctors at the Relief Station found no evidence of poison.

LODGER HANGS SELF IN EAST BOSTON

Mrs. Jane Fatin, landlady at No. 134 Meridian street, East Boston, went into her "third floor, rear" today to clean up. She found the lodger, James F. MacDonald, forty-eight, single, hanging from the bedpost by his suspenders. He was dead.

The police are attempting to find a motive for the suicide.

PLEA GOES TO PAROLE BOARD

Barr, Already in for 23 Years, Bitter at Justice and His Fate

By HAROLD R. HALL

Over in the State Prison at Charlestown is a little gray-haired man who is beginning to doubt that there is such a thing as justice in the "land of the free."

He is James Barr, native of Scotland, a "lifer."

Barr did not commit murder. His crime against society consisted of getting drunk and attacking a forty-four-year-old spinster. For this crime, done under the influence of liquor, Barr was sentenced to life imprisonment at Charlestown. That was in September, 1900. He has served twenty-three years behind the prison walls. Now he is asking the parole board and the Governor of this Commonwealth for his freedom.

Col. Walter Scott

This week the parole board is expected to take action on Barr's plea.

Colonel Walter Scott of New York, one of the most prominent Scots in America, stands ready to provide the money to put James Barr on his feet as soon as he is released from prison. Colonel Scott has visited Barr at the State Prison.

ONLY SCOT IN PRISON.

Out of a total of 85,000 Scots residing in Massachusetts, Barr is the only one in the State prison. The remaining 84,999 Scots are standing solidly behind this lone Scotchman in his plea for freedom.

Another unusual feature of this case is the fact that Barr's entire family is arrayed against him in his fight for freedom. His divorced wife and his three daughters are one on all want to have their father kept in prison.

At the hearing before the parole board Barr's son, former wife and daughters appeared. One daughter, Isobella, even testified against the release of her father, said the family wanted him kept in prison. The Barr family lives in Fitchburg, where they are all well known. It was in Fitchburg that the Barrs lived when James Barr was arrested and sent away twenty-three years ago. Barr has been practically forgotten in that city since then.

PRISONER BITTER.

Still another feature is the length of the sentence given Barr for a statutory offence—life.

That is what is making James Barr bitter.

To the writer, who called on Barr at the State prison, he poured out his pitiful tale.

"When I committed the crime, for which I am now serving a life sentence, I was so drunk that I did not even know I committed a crime. Should I be made to spend the rest of my life in prison for that?

"I know it was wrong for me to drink as I did in those days. But if I had not been free for the owners of the saloons and rum houses, who were piling up wealth at the expense of the likes of me, that crime would never have been committed. Nothing was done to the man who sold me the liquor that resulted in the crime.

"If that is justice, well, why say anything more?

FAMILY OPPOSITION HURTS.

"But to have my family go back on me as they have, is what hurts me even more than the unusual jail sentence. When I came here twenty-three years ago, my children were just little shavers. It broke my heart to come away from them. I shall never forget them as they looked then. I have never seen them since.

The little, gray-haired man, who has grown old and bowed behind the prison walls, could speak no more. Tears streamed down his furrowed cheeks. He tried bravely to choke them back. He could not stop them.

"I WOULD like to ask you for the hand of your daughter, Mr. Greenback," said young Jonathan Juniper as he cordially slapped the great chewing gum magnate on the back.

"I must say that I don't admire your taste," replied the magnate. "However, that is your own look-out."

"She isn't so much to look at," admitted Jonathan, "but then with a rich father that doesn't make so much difference."

"Just a minute, young man," interrupted Mr. Greenback, "what social connections have you? My son-in-law must be a man who is highly popular in society."

"But Mr. Greenback, you forget that I am a bootlegger," said Jonathan. "With your capital and my large list of acquaintances we can clean up a fortune."

"Well, that's different," replied the magnate. "Suppose you get the engagement ring at my jeweler's and we'll arrange to have the wedding right away."

"I want to see the proprietor of this place," demanded Mrs. Cauliflower angrily as she entered the office of the Film Flam Photo Studio.

"I am the manager," said the elderly gentleman who was playing tiddly-winks with the stenographer in the corner. "What is on your mind?"

"Why these pictures that I had taken don't look like me at all," said Mrs. Cauliflower.

"I'm sorry," apologized the photographer, "I touched them up as much as I could."

"That's just the trouble; you made me so beautiful that nobody would recognize me," replied Mrs. Cauliflower. "I want some photographs that look like me and not like some California bathing beauty.

"I can't help that," said Mr. Shaughnessey. "The janitor is sick and I wouldn't have the tenants catch cold for anything in the world."

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

STAYING all night at other people's houses is getting to be a great habit. A man will go calling on some friends in the evening and along about eleven o'clock he'll start yawning until they shove a bed underneath him.

HE'D rather stay awake on their couch than get a good night's sleep in his own bed

HE tosses all night worrying about where they're going to keep when they come over to his house.

SOME guys go to your home and accept your hospitality and remark what a real friend you are and then hide their wallet the minute you go out of the room.

THEY don't want to walk in their sleep.

THEN when you go in and wake him up in the morning the first thing he does is to stretch and count this money

WHILE you're checking up on your wash and dough, the host is in the dining room taking inventory of the silverware.

IF there's nothing missing he'll ask you again and if there is something gone then he accepts an invitation to your house so that he can get it back

HE wouldn't accuse you of taking it, but it was there when you went to bed.

AND he figures if you hadn't stayed all night he'd still have it.

SOME people make a habit of staying all night with friends. They don't have to have any home. All they need is a pair of pajamas and get their mail care of general delivery

ONE man had so many friends he didn't pay a nickel room rent in six months

HE even stayed three or four days with some of them so he could sent his laundry out with theirs

HE got it washed for nothing, an' then had the nerve to ask them to change laundries as his shirts were being ruined

OF course he always offered to pay for it and once he said it so loud they almost heard him.

THIS is one way to solve the rent problem, and as long as you're at it you might as well live American plan, never stop any friends who haven't got a kitchen

TO FIGHT INFLUENZA

—By Brice Belden, M. D.—

THE great prevalence of this communicable disease makes it incumbent upon everyone to acquaint himself or herself with the main facts regarding it. Upon early diagnosis, early isolation and precautionary measures upon the part of attendants and those exposed depends the control of epidemics of this affection

Two Types of Disease

There are two general types of the disease, though in many cases the symptoms of both types may be manifested more or less. In one type, if clear cut, the symptoms are headache, lassitude, general aching, chills, fever, prostration, loss of appetite and nausea or even more pronounced disturbance of the stomach

In the other type the dominant symtoms are intense congestion of the nose, throat and bronchial tubes and of the eyes. Either type may make its appearance suddenly or gradually, and, as has been said, the two types may merge. Then there are cases which may begin like the first type, then have a variable period of intermission after which the symptoms of type two make their appearance and the patient begins to have a cough, et cetera.

Rash on Face

In some cases there is a dusky rash upon the face and chest, occasionally spreading to the back and extremities.

In the congestive cases the throat reveals a bright red appearance. The blood pressure in influenza is usually low.

With regard to the germs present, it may be described as a mixed infection; that is, quite a number of organisms play parts in the influenza drama. These germs are believed to be practically always present in the nose and throat, only lacking their time for opportunities to strike down their carrier.

Hobnobbing With Egypt

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

EGYPT has come into fashion after some three thousand years and more. Everybody knows all about her now. The student is digging into forgotten information on the burning, melancholy land, the eternally sunny land, the land that Cleopatra, herself a descendant of the green, joyous land of Greece, called the land of the dead.

"If you dig," said she, in the words that Theophile Gautier put into her rosy mouth, "you come to the sun—you dig the sun, and there is the father, beneath him again lies the grandfather, and so on—down, down, the dead beneath the dead, mummy below mummy. Egypt is built upon the dead!"

Still Cleopatra managed to forget them sometimes it seems, and to get pretty big times out of being Queen of Egypt. While the student digs, the artist bales forth his picture book, makes flying calls on the museums and revels in new speculations upon an old civilisation. While these two revel in color and knowledge, the young thing wonders if she couldn't evolve a bonnet, a chapeau, a hat, out of the famed head-dresses that went with the black, bobbed heads of Egypt—the circlet and asp for evening wear—the cake-box with an up-curved figurine over the forehead and a veil draped behind the ear-puffs for tea—the snug, rocky little partridge helmet with a fan-tail behind and wings folded over the ears for the day-time feather—hat.

Everybody's digging in Egypt—a good many folks besides the scientists and a lord or two who are actually camping at the door of Tut-ankh-Amen's tomb. The busy little housewife knows all about the "Ka" and the "Ba-bird." The high school boy, elucidating for his attentive family around the dinner table, tells everybody why they placed mummified food in his kingly resting place, and has a theory on how the pyramids were built. The frivolous flapper has even been to the museum and can identify an Egyptian flapper when she sees one.

And her researches have only strengthened her opinion that the girl of today is not a bit more shocking than she was in other days, contrary to her grandma's and the world's decidedly "hot" belief.

If, with the return of Tut-ankh-Amen—or the appearance of his "double," which is supposed to wander the world over for all time just as it recently Hereth, Fashion goes in for things Egyptian—silks, jewelry, headgear we are going to see some queer sights—and we are goin' to see some doggone funny ones. For the headgear of ancient Egypt is not becoming to every woman that will want to wear it. —NELL BRINKLEY.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

Anne Tries to Be Sensible; She Gets an Important Telephone Message

By Ann Lisle

"YES," I said, wearily, "I'm to eat my first meal with you in public. I'm not to see anything of you on your first day at home. And it's all to the good."

"Now, listen, Anne—don't take on the unreasonable whimpering tone a woman of affairs has no excuse for using. You've business to attend to. This place certainly make some demands on you. You must be needed here. I don't want to steal any more of your working day. You've things to do and I've a few personal matters to attend to. We'd better stick to the working day. The evening is ours, dear," he added more tenderly.

"I understand," I said quietly "I'm trying to be sensible, Jim. But I've missed you almost beyond endurance. There were times when I thought I couldn't go on hearing the uncertainty. I didn't know where you were and what you were doing. Hard times came along and I had to find my way out alone. Danger vaulted un with me, and I had to meet it all by myself. I had no one."

A Few Helpers

"You managed to enlist few helpers, didn't you?" laughed Jim. "And I'll say it was darn clever of you to pick such able—lieutenants. A newspaper man is a fine choice for one. And you made good with Mabel and stood by her through thick and thin. She adores you. That's some big accomplishment. I'll tell you—for if ever there was a reserved lonewolf of a woman it's Mabel Storrs. We can't afford to start romancing now. The day's ahead with a lot to be done. I've got to hang on to myself. Don't make it hard for me—please be merciful Lilac Princess."

"Jim, dear!" I cried, my heart sing ng at the hint of emotion in his voice and struggling to be free. "Of course I'll—be businesslike and—conservative. I'm glad you approve of my friendship with Mabel."

"Another thing I approve of and O. K. all along the line, is this Lacy affiliation," said Jim. That's all to the good. Where can I get hold of this Lacy chap if I need him?"

"He's at the Star. He's advertising manager," I replied.

"I'll phone him," said Jim, amiably. "Might as well make it clear that I appreciate all he's done for my girl during my absence. I'd have had twice the worry I went through if I hadn't been blessed by the cheering realization that you've a gift for making friends."

"You're very sweet," I said uncertainly. "My business has done a lot for me. It's brought me poise —I hope. And it has certainly given me wonderful friends."

"You'll bring all that along as net profit," said Jim. "We'll both reap the advantages accruing from my absence. I'd bet that you run our home on an efficiency bas."

He came to my side with an air of possession that was too taxen for granted to be fraught with emotion. He put his hand under my chin and lifted my face. I was ready for his kiss—longing for it, when a knock sounded at the door. Jim smothered a laugh and strode back a step or two, folding his arms in a most business-like way as I called: "Come."

Frank, the cleves young office boy Ralph Lacy sent to me appeared in the doorway with a sheepish grin on his face which suggested that he might have caught a telltale silhouette through the ground glass upper part of the door.

"There's an awful important telephone message coming through for you, Mrs. Harrison," announced Frank. "Miss May says to you would I her to send it or wild you come out into the main office and take it, or what?"

"I'll take it right here." I replied, with no premonition of what was to follow.

Norreys on Phone

"Miss May said to tell you it's Mr. Norreys asking if you want him to get in touch with Mr. Fairbrother for you," the boy went on, with something astonishingly impressive in his voice. I realized with a start just what must be coming, and involuntarily I explained:

"What date is this?"

Curtly Jim told me the day and date.

As I picked up the telephone to talk to Mr. Fairbrother, I tried to forget that Jim was there. But even while I made the effort, I knew how futile it was. Every word I said must be colored by the fact that Jim sat across the room from me struggling with the old resentment he has always felt at the merest mention of Anthony Norreys' name.

I determined to be very guarded in what I said to Mr. Fairbrother, so I started out as if I were acting on my own initiative, without any suggestion from Tony.

"Good morning." This is Mrs. A. L. Harrison. My note is due, I believe, and without waiting for my three days of grace, I'd like to take it up at once."

"Please get Mr. Fairbrother himself on the wire," I said to Frank, "and tell Miss May to ring me as soon as she has him. And ask her to tell Mr. Norreys I'll ring him later."

As the boy left my office, closing the door after him, I turned to Jim with an apologetic smile.

"You said I'd have affairs to attend to. See—how right you were."

ROYAL ROMANCES

EDWARD IV. OF ENGLAND AND JANE SHORE

By Barbara Bayne

EDWARD IV. was what is termed today "a good sport" and was loved by all women. His amours were numberless. He once said he had "three favorites, one the cunningest, one the boldest and one the merriest in his kingdom." The first two were ladies of rank, but the "merry one," Jane Shore, was of lowly origin

Jane had been compared with Nell Gwyn, though she had more refinement than the "orange-girl." Endowed with much wit, great beauty and charm she was besieged by the courtiers, among them Lord Hastings who boldly planned her abduction. To get his "too beautiful" daughter out of harm's way, her father hastily arranged a marriage with William Shore, a goldsmith

Hastings, high in favor with the King, painted Jane a charm in such glowing colors that Edward resolved to see her himself. Disguised as a merchant, he visited the goldsmith's shop. At the first meeting both were fascinated.

Mistress Shaugin, living in the neighborhood of the shop, was taken into their confidence and allowed them to meet in her house. Jane and the so-distant merchan met there frequently and grew more and more infatuated.

One day, becoming too bold, Jane refused to see him again. The King, taking a new turn, revealed his identity to Mistress Shaugin, bound her to secrecy with a gold piece, and arranged for her to take Jane to a magnificent court ball.

With girlish enthusiasm Jane prepared for the great event. Directly they arrived an elegant stranger approached and asked for a dance. Jane was speechless with astonishment when she recognized in him not only the merchan, but the King. At the end of the dance he crushed a note into her hand containing an avowal of passionate love.

To the infinite disgust of her chaperone, Jane insisted upon leaving at once. But the wily old woman finally persuaded her that "it was a gallant thing to be loved by a king."

The following evening Jane was wanding alone. A carriage stopped and the driver gave her a note. Deeming it was her destiny, Jane stepped into the carriage and was conveyed to the palace. From that hour her power over the king was boundless. Beautiful, brilliant, she made a splendid ornament for his entertainments.

Her generous heart prompted her to use her position for the good of her unfortunate, never for self-aggrandizement. But the death of the King at only forty, put an end to royal favors. His brother, the Duke of Gloucester, not only shut the young king up in the Tower and proclaimed himself King, but accused Jane of sorcery. All the wealth that Edward IV. had lavished upon her was confiscated and she was cast into prison.

Lord Hastings, attempting to befriend her, was beheaded, which deterred others from intervening in her behalf. After sad plight awoke pity in all hearts; there were angry murmurings against the persecutor. But "Richard of the Crooked Back," as the new King was called, defiantly threw Jane into Lincoln prison. She was released only after she had outlived her beauty.

Reduced to beggary, she died in her eightieth year, in 1527.

Self Mastery Through Conscious Autosuggestion

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS ADDRESSED TO M. COUE

The final results of the English secondary Certificate have only been posted up these two hours, and I hasten to tell you about it, at least in so far as it concerns myself. I passed the viva voce with flying colors, and scarcely felt a trace of the nervousness which used to cause me such an intolerable sensation of nausea before the tests.

During the latter I was astonished at my own calm, which gave those who listened to me the impression of perfect self-possession on my part. In short, it was just the tests I dreaded most which contributed most to my success. The jury placed me Second, and I am infinitely grateful to you for help, which undoubtedly gave me an advantage over the other candidates, etc. (This case is that of a young lady, who, on account of excessive nervousness, had failed in 1915. The nervousness having vanished under the influence of autosuggestion, she passed successfully, being placed 2nd out of more than 200 competitors.)

Mlle. V...,
Schoolmistress, August, 1916.

It is with very great pleasure that I write to thank you most sincerely for the great benefit I have received from your method. Before I went to you I had the greatest difficulty in walking 100 yards, without being out of breath, whereas now I can go miles without fatigue. Several times a day and quite easily, I am able to walk in 40 minutes from the rue du Bord-de-l'Eau to the rue des Glacis, that is to say, nearly four kilometers. The asthma from which I suffered has almost entirely disappeared.

Yours most gratefully,

PAUL CHENOT,
Rue de Strasbourg, 141 Nancy, Aug., 1917.

I do not know how to thank you. Thanks to you I can say that I am almost entirely cured, and I was only waiting to be so in order to express my gratitude. I was suffering from two varicose ulcers, one on each foot. That on the right foot, which was as big as my hand, is entirely cured. It seemed to disappear by magic. For weeks I had been confined to my bed, but almost immediately after I received your letter the ulcer healed over so that I could get up. That on the left foot is not yet absolutely healed, but will soon be so. Night and morning I do, and always shall, recite the prescribed formula, in which I have entire confidence. I may say also that my legs were as hard as a stone and I could not bear the slightest touch. Now I can press them without the least pain, and I can walk once more, which is the greatest joy

MME. LIGNY,
Meilleroncourt-Charette (Haute Saone), May, 1918.

N. B.—It is worthy of remark that this lady never saw M. Coue, and that it is only thanks to a letter he wrote her on April 15th, that she obtained the result announced in her letter of May 3rd.

Asking for a Dance

DEAR MISS ADAMS:

What is the proper way for a gentleman to ask a lady for a dance? Also what should be say when he is about to leave her?

D. B

THE phrases used in both cases are very conventional. When asking a lady to dance, a gentleman says, "May I have this dance?" or "Would you care to dance?" After the dance he says, "Thank you very much for the dance," or even more simply, "Thank you." These formal expressions, if the young man has "manner" and personality, can be said with grace and distinction.

FINDING CHILD NATURE

By WILLIAM A. McKEEVER.

Widely Known Lecturer and Writer and a National Authority on Training of Children.

FEW people actually understand the psychology of childhood and youth.

It requires the rearing of five or six before ordinary parents learn to know at a glance all the larger traits and dispositions of young humanity.

Stealing, lying, fighting, cheating, disobedience and running away are all normal types of instinctive behavior, and they call for a slow and patient redirection.

Young parents often appeal to me in distress, after learning that their little one has suddenly begun the practice of falsehood and deception. Their failure to know this behavior to be normal gives it the force of a shock to their sense of respectability. "The very idea that my child should behave so shames me terribly!" one exclaims.

It should shock the parent more if his child at an early age does not manifest these rude instincts of animal cunning, so as to have them corrected and wrought into refinments of character. The natural course of learning for your "naughty" child is about as follows;

He tries to win an advantage by theft, but is taught by degrees that stealing defeats its own purpose.

He tries lying and deception as a means of attaining his desires. If rightly managed, these errors also will react toward the defeat of their perpetrator

He fights and quarrels with his brothers and sisters and playmates. The blows come back and strike him, either in a direct or an indirect form.

So with all the other wrongs to childhood. All the children of all the people are prone to commit them, and all these errors are the necessary beginnings of valuable lessons and discipline for life's worthy purposes.

Children are all right. They must learn through trial and error and slow correction.

It is the parents which concern me far more. Not the proneness of children and youth to begin life's lessons by committing so-called wrongs, but the marked misjudgment of common men and women regarding these errors of the young—that is the really serious problem.

Children will slowly correct their own mistakes if parents will first recognize their right to commit them. The young will climb above their errors by their own natural resource of strength if adults will only help them see the higher vision and will keep in mind the truth that "all may rise on stepping stones of their dead selves to higher things."

In some respects the good, the great and the noble among the men and women of today are those who have early tried out the way of error, have discovered its futility and have gone on triumphantly through the fires of difficulty, refinement and suffering.

THE original home of the fig was Southern Arabia. It was introduced to the Greek athletes about eight hundred years B. C. The Romans ate figs with salt, pepper, vinegar and aromatics.

THE ENEMIES OF WOMEN By BLASCO IBANEZ

Start Here Today This Engrossing Story of Life and Love from the Master Pen of One of the World's Greatest Novelists

By Vicente Blasco Ibanez,
Author of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and Other Novels of World Renown

"A DUEL right in war-time! Is there any common sense in that? You remain quietly in your home, with all the comforts that the times allow; you run no risk whatsoever, while half of humanity is weeping, starving, bleeding, dying. And then, just because one fine day you happen to be in an ill humor—perhaps you know why—you want to fight a poor boy who has survived almost by a miracle, and who is sick and weak from having done what you and I haven't had the courage to do. And you ask me to represent you in such a piece of madness?"

"He insulted me—he tried to strike me. I caught his hand close to my face," said the Prince in a low but rancorous voice, from the depths of his chair.

Castro hesitated a moment. He realized that he had no idea of the nature of the clash between the two men.

"There is something that I don't understand and that you are keeping silent," he said. "The very seriousness of the insult indicates that there was something extraordinary on your part. For that poor, respectful, and timid boy to dare to try and strike a man like you! . . . What did you do to arouse him to such a pitch?"

Lubimoff did not deign to reply. Without abandoning his frowning immobility, he asked briefly:

"Well, are you going to, or are you not?"

Castro, irritated by this attitude, replied without hesitation:

"It's all nonsense, and I refuse."

Lubimoff still remained motionless at his refusal, but Attilo was sure he guessed the Prince's thoughts in the hostile look fixed on him. Michael was mentally accusing him of ingratitude, and he was holding the Generalessa responsible, believing that it was she who had influenced Castro's decision. That Lieutenant was so greatly admired by Dona Clorinda!

As if in answer to these accusations, Castro went on:

"Don't think I am interested in that boy you are bent on fighting. He is quite indifferent to me; I even dislike him, because of the great extremes to which certain women we know have gone in their admiration of his heroism. That is always annoying to us who are not heroes. I know how insignificant he must have been only four years ago.

A Gesture of Protest

"If I had met him then, I should have found him, I dare say, a bookkeeper in some hotel, or a clerk in my haberdasher's in Paris. But the war has swept over us, turning everything upside down, making some emerge, and burying others in the deepest depths, without any certainty of rising again.

"This boy happens to be somebody now. He is of more consequence than you or I. He has been of some use; and for me he is sacred, in spite of the fact that he inspires envy in me rather than admiration."

The Prince made a gesture of protest, shrugging his shoulders disdainfully, and sank once more into motionless silence. This insignificant little adventurer worth more than he, because they had punctured his skin in a fight or duel.

"We should never come to an understanding—not if we talked all the afternoon," continued Castro. "I have changed considerably, and you are the same man you have always been. Yesterday I came to my road to Damascus. I feel today that I am a different man."

And, because he felt the need of expressing his great inner turmoil, he went on talking, without paying any attention to whether or not the Prince was listening to him.

He had come to his "road to Damascus" near the Monte Carlo Railway station, beside the tracks. He was with two ladies, in one of whom he was greatly interested (Michael thought once more of Dona Clorinda).

A trainload of soldiers was returning from Italy; a sombre train, without flags and without any branches of trees adorning the doors and windows. They were Frenchmen. They had been sent to Italy as reinforcements, after the disaster of Caporetto, and now they were hurriedly recalled to defend their own soil, which was in danger.

No songs and no wild merriment; they were all silent, tired and dirty, with an epic dirtiness. The cars were more like wild beasts' cages, with their pungent odor of the animal ring. The soldiers were young men, but they looked old, with their bristling beards, spotted uniforms, and faces parched by the sun, hardened by the cold, and cracked and chapped by the wind. Some of them had taken off their blouses, because of the heat, and were in flannel shirts of an indefinable color, drenched with the sweat of so many fatigues and so many emotions.

A Great Lesson

One could guess that they were the battalion always predestined to arrive in time to sustain the hardest shocks; the one that punctually appeared in the places of greatest danger, with the heroic resignation of the strong, who allow themselves to be exploited, and who not only do their own work, but help out with the others who work less.

Where had these men not fought? On their own soil, and on that of the Allies, and perhaps in the Orient, and now they were returning either to the land of their first combats. Just when they were thinking they had accomplished something they discovered that they had yet done nothing in the weaving and unweaving of the web of war, it was necessary to begin all over again. Four years before they imagined they had triumphed decisively on the banks of the Marne.

Every Winter, sunk in the mud, buried in the trenches, under the rain, they said to one another: "This will be the last. And another Winter came, and another, and still another on the heels of the last, without any noticeable change. This was the reason for their fatalistic and resigned demeanor, the look of men who adapt themselves to everything and finally come to believe that their misery will be eternal, that human times of peace will never return.

Castro stopped talking a moment, but he paid no attention to the face of his friend, which seemed to be asking what this story could possibly have to do with him.

"We were standing on the edge of an embankment, leaning over the protecting guard rails, our heads on a level with the men huddled in the cars. The long train was pulling slowly into the station. My two companions were waving their handkerchiefs, smiling at the soldiers, and calling words of greeting to them. Many of the men remained unmoved, looking back at them with the eyes of sleepy wild beasts. They had been greeted with ovations for four years, they knew realities, the terrible realities that lie beyond the ovations.

A Terrible Reminder

Others, younger or more ardent, showed themselves at the sight of these two beautiful women. Electrified by their smiles, they laughed and threw kisses, trying to recover the gentleness of those days when they were not soldiers.

"Suddenly one of them forgot the women and noticed me, waving my hat and shouting hurrah. He was a red-haired, bitter, rebellious-looking fellow. He gave the two women a scornful, ironic smile—then turned to me, and pointing to the end of the car, shouted:

"'There's room here for you.'

Said Enough

"That was all he said," Castro continued. "But he said enough, Michael. Since then I keep hearing his harsh voice; I shall always hear it, even in my happiest moments—unless I get into the war. Oh, that look in his eyes! I understood all the mute insults, the rapid comparisons he made between his misery and my strong, well-groomed appearance. For him I was a coward who avoids about with women, while real men are at the front, giving their lives for something of importance."

Michael shrugged his shoulders with a gesture of indifference.

"And now you propose," Castro continued excitedly, "that I arrange for a deadly combat with one of these men who considered themselves, not without reason superior to us! No! Now you know my answer; I won't accept."

FOXY GRANDPA STORIES

THE joy of children now grown up with children of their own has been discovered again—Foxy Grandpa! Out from his retirement with dear little Bunny, he steps to make his best bow to you.

This is the first of a fascinating series of stories Foxy Grandpa, himself, has written especially for this newspaper. There will be a new story every day, each illustrated by one of Foxy Grandpa's funny pictures.

How Bunny Helped Save Foxy Grandpa's Life

SO, you want me to tell you a story children? Wouldn't you rather go for a walk or to see a picture?

Well, I'll tell you about the campfire trip Bunny and I took West when I was a young fellow.

In those days the West was young and wild. There weren't any railroads. All the travelling was done by stage or on horseback.

The distances were great and there were few houses. For that reason a man was dependent on his horse.

He had to go on horseback for food and for the mail and in case of sickness for the doctor—because you see, there were no telephones or even telegraph wires. So you just couldn't live if you didn't have a horse.

That was why they used to punish horse thieves so severely. For in that country in those days, a man's most valuable possession was his horse. A horse meant life or death.

One day I got ready to ride over to a neighboring ranch about thirty miles away. Of course, Bunny was going with me.

We started early in the morning and could have reached there by night. But when we rested for lunch, we stopped by a stream, so Tony—that was the name of my horse—could have a drink.

Bunny was nosing around as usual, and the first thing I knew he whispered:

"Grandpa! There's a big trout under that bush."

It didn't take me long to get out my fishing-pole. In a minute, I had landed him. The fishing was fine. But night came before I realized it.

Bunny and I had to camp out that night.

I rolled myself in my blanket and Bunny crawled down by my feet. What a fine, hot-water bottle he made! Well, I was sleeping like a top, when suddenly I heard something moving around. I sat up and reached for my gun, rubbing my eyes.

There in the darkness was a huge animal.

I don't mind telling you, children, I was scared.

I knew elephants didn't grow out there. But this thing looked as big as an elephant.

I rested one elbow on the ground and leveled my gun.

Just then Bunny gasped:

"What on earth are you doing? Don't shoot!"

"But it's an awful animal that may eat us up," I whispered.

"Awful animal nothing! That's your horse!"

I dropped my gun and sighed a great sigh of relief.

"Bunny, you're a great little fellow." I chuckled. "You not only save my faithful horse, but you may have saved my life. There's no telling what might have happened if we had been left out here in the mountains without a horse."

So now, you see, that is one reason why I love Bunny so much. And what a wonderful thing it is that he can talk!

Kiss me good night, my dears, and run along to bed.

DAILY HOROSCOPE
Mary Blake Says:

A CHILD born today will be well conducted and in later life much respected.

Aspects of favorable nature occur which are beneficial for literary and artistic pursuits, and for dealings with people engaged in these lines. Today offers good signs not only along these lines, but in your private life as well.

If born today you have good taste in art, literature and music lacking in self control. You are might master the technique of any one of them, particularly music, but your emotional nature is not so strong in the quality of personal expression which marks the artist.

You should also make an excellent salesman as your personal charm is your chief asset.

In disposition you are at times lacking in self control. You are not necessarily easily irritated, but when aroused your anger is likely to run amuck and seriously affect your health. Remember it is you who suffers most by these outbursts and a mere apology is no correction.

You are energetic and capable of continuous effort even at things which do not interest you.

Marriage is one thing for which you are not pre-eminently suited.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

Frederick the Great always began his day at five, and during the last few months prior to his death his Privy Councillors had to bring him their reports at four in the morning. He consoled them with the remark that "It would not last much longer." The Emperor William I. was at his desk with wide overhanging eaves.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

—By Aline Michaelis—

WE set apart a score of days
To make their meaning lasting,
we're always seeking out new ways
Of feasting and of fasting.
The snake's exile from Irish soil
We celebrate with pleasure, and
March to lively measure.
In the music and the fun, for feasts
I'm always willing; but there's one day of which I shudder:
"Thrilling!" A day that often rolls around, yet finds me ever ready, that fills me with a joy profound, a rapture truly heady.
Of sundry fine and festal times when life is in its hey-day, with proxy hours turned into rhymes my choice is always pay day! The day that makes the wolf depart and leaves me unmolested is still the dearest to my heart and has all others bested. The millionaire may blithely sing the artless joys of May Day; but sweeter than the lovely Spring, I hold the charm of pay day.

Mother's Sponge Cake

Two cups sugar, flavoring, 4 eggs, 3 cups of sifted flour, 3 teaspoonfuls baking powder, 1 cup boiling milk. Take the eggs and beat well with egg beater, then add sugar, and beat well; then add flavoring. Put baking powder in flour and sift together; put hot milk in last. I always put a little flour, then a little milk until completed. This makes a large loaf, so can be cut down if desired.

Easter Cake

Beat three eggs until thick and light. Add 1 cup of sugar and beat again. Add 1 heaping tablespoon butter (melted), 2 teaspoons milk and 1 cup of flour, to which I have added 1 heaping teaspoon baking powder. Bake in shallow pans for twenty minutes. Cool and put the following mixture between and on top of the cake: Filling: Mix together one heaping cup fresh strawberries, 1 cup fine sugar and the white of one egg. Beat until stiff enough to hold its shape.

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEHOLD

Tea leaves are invaluable as a means of cleaning varnished paint. When sufficient tea has been laid aside, they should be placed in a tin basin full of water, and soaked for half an hour. The tea, when strained, should be used instead of soap and water to clean the varnished surface.

Spots of grease on leather upholstery are best treated with spirits of sal ammoniac. Dab the spots carefully, allowing time for the liquid to act. Then wash with clean water. In the case of grease marks that are of long standing, the process may have to be repeated two or three times.

When cleaning an ermine tie, or any other soft white pelt, plain flour or plaster of Paris will be found good cleaning agencies. When not in use, white furs should always be kept in blue paper. This will help to preserve the color, and prevent them turning yellow.

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Take Jad Salts to Flush Kidneys if Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney troubles in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness and bladder irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR IN A MOMENT

Try This! Hair Appears Soft, Colorful and Abundant —A Gleamy Mass

35 Cent Bottle of "Danderine" Also Ends Dandruff; Falling Hair!

Immediately!—your hair becomes beautiful. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and really appear twice as thick and abundant—a mass of luxuriant, glinty, colorful hair.

Besides beautifying hair, Danderine eradicates dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is the best, cheapest and most delightful hair dressing and tonic. It is to the hair what fresh showers of rain are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, vitalizes and strengthens them. Its stimulating properties help the hair to grow long, heavy, strong.

You can surely have beautiful hair, and one of it, if you will spend 35 cents for a bottle of Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter. It is not greasy, oily or sticky.

Genuine BAYER Aspirin

SAY "BAYER" when you buy Aspirin

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets you are not getting the genuine Bayer product prescribed by physicians over twenty-two years and proved safe by millions for colds, headache, toothache, earache, neuralgia, lumbago, rheumatism, neuritis, and for pain in general. Accept only "Bayer" packages which contains proper directions. Handy boxes of twelve tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell bottles of 24 and 100. FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Happily, the danger of overdoing the business boom is becoming more widely and more clearly recognized.

A Wall Street bear said this to me last week: "In your articles you are asking business men not to go too far in marking up prices and in expanding production. You might as well set a pailful of ice cream in front of a lot of children and expect them not to eat too much of it."

Practically all the economists attached to America's leading financial institutions are warning against over-expansion and drawing attention to the fact that loans and investments of the nation's banks increased more than $2,000,000,000 last year and deposits $2,000,000,000 during the twelve months. Dun's review emphasizes that in conservative quarters a cautious policy has been adopted and that "more is being heard of effort to discourage speculative excesses." The head of the National Association of Credit Men urges its 3,000 members to "exercise caution." At banking and trade conventions a similar tenor now rules.

The stock market is also, in its own way, insisting cautionary signals. In the last three weeks the average quotation of railway and industrial stocks has fallen almost 2¼ points to a new level for the year, while bonds have declined nearly 3 points, also to the lowest of the year.

Of late, the stock market has been honeycombed with pools which are striving to bolster up title, that and the next stock.

Most bankers are doing their best to keep the boom within reasonable bounds. They are counseling their customers to do all the current business possible, but warning them against proceeding on the assumption that boom demand will continue indefinitely. All are advised to pay quite as close attention to selling as to production, and to do everything possible to guard against the danger of being caught with awkwardly heavy inventories should consumption contract.

The example set by William M. Wood, head of the American Woolen Company, in advancing wages is being followed by many other woolen mills and also by many cotton mills. Steel mills are expected to announce another wage advance during April. Wages paid by builders at certain points are now higher than ever. Events are revealing in many industries that manufacturers have resorted to run the risk of a "buyers' strike" rather than a workers' strike. The real test will not come until buyers are asked to foot the bill—when purchasing finished goods—for the advances which have occurred in most raw materials and now also in wages.

Attention is invited to these various developments in the hope that everything within reason will be done to nurse along our present prosperity by avoiding anything and condemning anything tending to bring on inflation and excesses and their inevitable aftermath.

Let us refrain from eating too much ice cream.

Lows for Day Set in Late New York Trading After Bursts of Strength

SEVERAL FRESH TOPS FOR 1923 RECORDED

Lows for the day were set in late trading on the New York Stock Exchange after bursts of strength had been shown. Money renewed at 5½ per cent.

American Ice, Owens Bottle, Brown Shoe, Century Ribbon and Marland Oil and Shell Union Oil were among issues setting new 1923 highs. Shell Union's strength was a reflection of last week's report that it had struck the largest producing well yet hit in California.

Willys-Overland preferred was up more than 4 points to a new high for the year.

Prices were unsettled in the whole list in the noon dealings by a sudden outburst of selling in the rail group. Union Pacific broke 3⅝ at 135¾ and other standards suffered substantial recessions, although the street was flooded with rumors regarding unfavorable developments affecting rail shares. In the absence pf any specific news the pronounced weakness in the rails suggested a desire to realize profits before the period covering in industrials. This inference was supported by the steadiness in other sections of the market.

If it was a drive it was successful, at least to the extent of puzzling the Street and so creating more or less apprehension of somewhat unfavorable development.

Meetings of the American Railway Association and Association of Railway Executives in New York this week will probably bring forth some striking exhibits as to the tremendous volume of traffic during the past six months and still being moved.

Penn Seaboard Steel reached its best 1923 price at 5⅝, reflecting earnings of $41,869 in January and February, contrasted with a loss of $103,519 in the corresponding months of 1922.

Break in Union Pacific was attributed to a report that the matter of reducing the dividend from the current 10 per cent. rate would be considered at the next dividend meeting May 10. Company has paid 10 per cent. for six years.

WHEAT DELIVERIES AT RECORD TOPS

General buying due chiefly to unfavorable crop reports resulted in an advance to the season's highest prices for July and September deliveries of wheat. Latest Chicago prices were: July, 115⅜; May, 117⅜; September, 115⅝. Corn, May, 74⅜; July, 76⅜; September, 77⅜. Oats, May, 45; July, 44⅜; September, 44⅜.

Humphreys Oil Strike

Humphreys Oil Company, in which Pure Oil Company has a 75 per cent. stock interest, has completed a well in new district near Powell, Tex., which made 1000 barrels in the first twenty-four hours.

Wall St. Gossip

ERIE has ordered 1,600 box cars from Pressed Steel Car Co. 1,000 box cars and 1,000 gondola cars from Youngstown Steel Car Co.

MISSOURI, Kansas & Texas Railroad has formally emerged from receivership. It was thrown into September 27, 1915, and henceforth will be known as Missouri Kansas Texas Railroad.

PENNSYLVANIA Railroad reports for 1922 net income of $22,715,053, after taxes and charges, comparing with $24,307,669 in 1921.

SPICER Manufacturing Corporation for 1922 reports net profits of $512,744 after interest and inventory loss, against net loss of 41,-005,257 in 1921.

SPECIAL meeting to consider proposed changes in stock of California Petroleum is called for April 26.

IF U. S. Steel declares extra dividend or dividends this year, as rumor again says may be the case, it would appear to be part of a move to aid distribution, when Steel's figures for past two years are considered.

RETAIL Candy Stores, now paying nothing, is expected to be placed on a dividend basis in connection with its proposed "big board" listing.

CHINO COPPER'S proposed increased stock, to be voted on at Portland, Me., April 20, when issued, is expected to be offered stockholders pro rata for subscription.

FOR THE short swing speculators are working with increasing caution.

CENTRAL of Georgia for 1922 reports net income of $2,063,812 after taxes and charges, against deficit of $979,813 in 1921.

Bright Spots in Shadowland

FRANK KEENAN, who plays one of the leading roles in "Scars of Jealousy," Thomas H. Ince's drama of the South, has played the role of a Southern colonel of the old school so many times and so convincingly that most picture fans believe he was born below the Mason and Dixon line and grew up with the goatee with which adorns his chin. As a matter of fact, Keenan is a son of Massachusetts, and when he turned to the stage was employed as a Boston salesman for a hardware house. Mr. Keenan is now taking a vacation by appearing on the speaking stage in "Peter Weston."

SHAVING FORBIDDEN.

DIRECTOR LAURENCE TRIMBLE, who is making the forthcoming "The Phantom Pack" and Jack London's "White Fang," the next two Strongheart starring vehicles, is threatened with "serious labor troubles." The company is wearing at Banff, Alberta, Canada, where they have been since December 15 and during all that time the shaving has been Trimble's order to the male members of the company. They are all threatened to strike unless the director allows them to cut off their beards.

MISS DAVIES' DOUBLE.

TO find a boy who closely resembled the beautiful Marion Davies was the difficult task assigned Michael Connolly, casting director of Cosmopolitan Production last week. After rejecting dozens of applicants and fruitlessly searching through piles of photographs he at last found the one boy in New York who looks enough like the famous star to pass for her own brother. The lucky "find" is sixteen-year-old Steve Carr, son of Mary Carr, the film actress. Now young Carr is at work in the Jackson studio on the final scenes of "Little Old New York," in which he is to appear with Miss Davies.

EMPLOYES OF GINTER FIRM PLAN FROLIC

In accordance with their annual custom, the Ginter employes are arranging for a big Easter frolic, which will be held on the evening of Wednesday, April 4, at the State Ballroom on Massachusetts avenue.

Arrangements are being made to accommodate at least 1,000 guests and several excellent vaudeville sketches have been specially selected for the event. Dancing will commence at 8:30, continuing until 1 a. m.—the music being furnished by Boston's foremost orchestra.

The frolic is being held in behalf of the Ginter Employes' Benevolent Association, the proceeds to go to the special fund for the relief of sick and needy members.

A special committee composed of Louis L. Glazier, chairman; Montague J. Apfel, Thomas F. Cox, Emerson W. Brooks, Harry Ryan and Carrol Burns are making every effort to make this season's frolic by far the most enjoyable and successful ever staged by the association.

FLAHERTY POST MILITARY BALL

M. J. Boyle

The fourth annual military ball of the Lieutenant Lawrence J. Flaherty Post, No. 80, American Legion of East Boston, is to be held in the Crescent Gardens Ballroom, Revere Beach, this evening. Past Commander Matthew J. Boyle is chairman of the reception committee.

WHOLESALE GROCERS GUESTS AT DINNER

The first get-together dinner given by the New England Association of Manufacturers' Representatives will be held at the City Club Tuesday evening. It will be in honor of the Wholesale Grocers of New England. The New England Association of Manufacturers' Representatives is composed of the leading representatives of the leading food manufacturers in the country. Nearly 200 have signified their intention to be present. Charles Coolidge Parlin of the Boston research department of the Curtis Publishing Company will be the principal speaker. Dr. Willard Scott of Brookline and vice-president of the Specialty Manufacturers' Association of New York will preside.

TRAVEL BRIEFS

NATIONAL and INTERNATIONAL

A remarkable revival of interest is being shown throughout New England in the weekly educational trips to Washington, D. C., now being conducted by the Fall River line. The trips are made via the palatial steamers of the Fall River line to New York, thence by Pennsylvania Railroad and Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, each road being traveled on alternate weeks.

On the trip which left Boston on March 23 there were 375 passengers in the party. The party which left South Station on March 30 numbered 160 persons. No such interest has been shown since before the World War.

The trips are in the form of personally conducted tours, including all expenses for hotels, meals and sightseeing. They will be run weekly until May 25.

The value of these trips to the people's capital from an educational standpoint is considered so valuable that the senior classes of various high schools all over New England are making the trips as class affairs, and are being accompanied by their teachers, parents and friends. Many of the parties also include Atlantic City in their itinerary.

REMARKABLE SAFETY RECORD.

The benefit to the traveling public of the safety movement being conducted by many railroads of the country is well illustrated by the report just issued by the Great Northern Railway, giving statistics of the accidents and deaths to employes over the period from 1913 to 1922, inclusive.

The total number of employes killed decreased over 54 per cent., 212 persons having been killed in 1913, as compared with ninety-seven in 1922.

In the matter of passenger traffic, the records are even more remarkable, for in the past five years not one passenger has been killed. And last it might be thought by Easterners that the Great Northern is not a great passenger railroad, figures are appended showing that during the period over 30,000,000 passengers were carried an average of eighty-five miles each. It is probable that no railroad in the country can exceed this record of safety.

VACATION FOLDERS READY.

Folders descriptive of many trips to the West and Northwest at the low summer vacation rates have been received at the local office of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway, at room 416 Old South Building.

The recent action of the New England Passenger Association in deciding to continue this season the same low rates which were in effect last year to the various gateways over which the trunk line railroads, assures that rates to Western and West coast points will remain at practically last year's level.

The Northwestern's folder gives briefly details of cost and routing information regarding trips to California and North Coast Colorado and Utah. The Yellowstone National (Estes) Park, Black Hills of South Dakota, Glacier National Park and Yellowstone National Park.

Copies may be obtained without charge by those interested by application to J. H. Schultz, general agent, Boston.

EATONS' BRANCH POPULAR.

The growing popularity among New Englanders of the famous Eatons' Branch at Wolf, Wyo., during the Summer vacation season, has made necessary a wool of caution, the resorts' luxury hostelry stating those who want to avail themselves of this old-fashioned vacation to make reservations early.

Among those who have been accustomed to go to this famous ranch each Summer, the absence of Howard Eaton, founder of the ranch, who died last Fall, will seem an irreparable loss. His death makes the country a sad place in the attractions offered vacationists, in that no trips will be made to Glacier or Yellowstone Parks.

The three younger brothers, Willis, Alden and "Bill," will continue the supervision of the activities at the home ranch and the special camping trips into the Bighorn Mountains and Big Basin.

A supply of the new 1923 booklets, giving full information regarding the trips, may be obtained without cost, by application to Alex Stocks, general agent, Burlington route, at No. 352 Old South Building, Boston.

PROPOSAL
THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH
Notice to Contractors

The Department of Mental Diseases invites sealed proposals under separate bids for Fan and Fan Engines for the Power House at the Massachusetts School for Feeble-minded, Wrentham, Mass.

Contractors desiring plans and specifications may obtain same at the office of Wyatt, Hunt & Bunnell, Business Agents of the Department, Room 1003B, State House, Boston, Mass. Bids must be made upon the prescribed form of the Department, and be accompanied by a certified check, or bond, for five per cent. of the amount of the bid. If awarded, one hundred per cent. of the amount will be required of the successful bidder with each contract. All bids must be plainly marked and left with the Business Agent of the Department, Room 1003B, State House, Boston, before 12 noon, Monday, April 9, 1923, at which time all bids will be publicly opened and read. Plans and specifications may also be seen at the office of the Engineers, Charles H. Tenney & Co., 300 Washington st., Boston, Mass.

The Department reserves the right to reject any or all bids or to award the contract to the lowest if it is deemed to be for the best interests of the Commonwealth to do so.

DEPARTMENT OF MENTAL DISEASES.
By Geo. M. Kline,
Commissioner.

IN BOARD OF STREET COMMISSIONERS, BOSTON, March 26, 1923.

March 31, 1923.

Ordered—That due notice be given that this Board is of the opinion that, in said city, a new street or streets should be made, consisting of the discontinuance of a part of Dorchester Avenue, Boston Proper, as a highway, on the southeasterly side thereof, and of Dorchester Avenue, Boston Proper, as a highway, on the southwesterly side thereof, as shown on a plan on file in the office of this Board, that it intends to pass an order for the laying out, improvement and use of such streets or highways, and that it appoints 11 o'clock a. M. of April 16, 1923, at the office of this Board as the time and place for a hearing of the parties interested.

A true copy of an order passed by said Board.

Attest: JOSEPH F. SULLIVAN, Secretary.

U.S. Should Control Sale of Habit Forming Drugs

The United States should itself manufacture and distribute and completely control the sale of all habit-forming drugs.

Narcotic addicts should all be sequestered, and, if confirmed, should be isolated. Their contagion is worse than that of the most fatal contagious disease.

Illicit manufacturers or dealers should be prosecuted for felony and on the expiration of their terms of punishment should be expelled from the country.

Good Indian Answers

They Are Very "Direct" Red Men

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Indians spontaneously produce appropriate answers to difficult questions.

Early in the last century, when missionaries called upon the famous "Red Jacket," up in the Genesee Valley, to make a Christian of him, he listened attentively. Then he said:

You white men killed your God; that is YOUR lookout. Don't try to make us red men responsible for what YOU did. If He had come here we should have treated Him kindly and given Him a wigwam.

The other day some very foolish person in the department that takes care of American Indians, and does it badly, announced that the Pueblo Indians must give up their solemn dancing. The Pueblos replied:

We shall stop our dancing when the white man stops his dancing. You tell us to imitate the white man, farm like the white man, save money like the white man, and settle down like the white man. All right, we'll dance like the white man, and he dances a good deal.

Singing Helps

But It's the Wrong Song

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

A Berlin mob gathered in front of the French Embassy, singing "Deutschland Ueber Alles," and was dispersed by mounted police. It is a glorious thing to relieve your feelings in song. But just now the crowd singing "Deutschland Ueber Alles" would seem to lack a sense of humor.

"Frankreich Ueber Alles" would seem more appropriate and exact, for France certainly towers over everything in Europe at present, including even the proud British lion.

The French, a thinking and logical people, have known enough to keep prepared. They merely laughed when England and America suggested that they should cut down their army. You don't catch the French making agreements with foreign nations that would enable England to tell French officers what they may and may not do with guns on French ships. It takes simpleton statesmen of the United States brand to do that kind of thing.

French Women Can't Vote

But They Rule French MEN, and That Helps

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

The French Senate decided recently that French women must not vote—for the present. It is a bad thing and yet not such a bad thing. It is a bad thing, because the French women in public matters are the most intelligent women in the world.

It is not such a very bad thing, because, as an intelligent French King remarked, practically every Frenchman is ruled by some woman. (That isn't limited to Frenchmen, by the way.)

Every intelligent Frenchman consults some intelligent Frenchwoman on all important matters. Every French business has an intelligent French business woman connected with it. Whatever happens in French politics, French women have something to do with it, as poor old Louis XVI. and his wife learned when they rode to the guillotine.

It is the power of women, with or without the vote, that is destined to civilize the world eventually.

DebtCollecting and Burglary

There Is a Difference

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

You saw Lloyd George's suggestion that as long as England is going to pay the United States five billions, France ought to be compelled to pay to England her debt of four billions, and that England might proceed to collect forcibly, if necessary.

This suggestion shocks the sedate New York Times. It wonders how Lloyd George can object to French seizures of the Ruhr and at the same time suggest forcible collection of a debt from France.

The answer is that there is some difference between burglary and debt collecting. The English lent four billions to France. France didn't lend any billions to Germany. She and her allies decided that they would LIKE to get thirty-three billions in gold from Germany, almost four times as much gold as there is in the world. That doesn't exactly constitute a debt. It is more like a HOPE.

CALIFORNIA HAS HALF U.S. WINE

LOS ANGELES, April 2.—Over half the wine supply in the United States was in California at the end of last year, according to statistics prepared by the office of R. B. Goodcell, collector of internal revenue for this district. According to the figures, the total wine supply for the United States was 37,047,290 gallons, and of this amount 20,860,000 gallons were in California. California, however, the report shows, had a much smaller supply of whiskey, gin and other hard liquor.

THE VOICE OF NEW ENGLAND

Tools of England

Editor Boston American:

Your work on the dope evil is to be admired, but the dope evil cannot be crushed unless the United States government can do something with the English government. England is responsible for the drugging of other nations. It is known she is aiding in the smuggling of opium in China. She also is debauching India with her dope curse.

England's greed for gold, oil fields, land and her desire to be the dominant power of Europe has kept the world in turmoil most of the time. She never fights alone.

Let France and Germany make up and settle their troubles and cease being made a fool of by England. HARRY DAVIS.

Memorial Trees

Editor Boston American:

We owe living memorials to our soldiers. The trees bring moisture and increase the yield of agriculture.

We do not believe that trees should be planted on highways alone. We are for memorial trees, planted and cared for by individuals on home grounds, in parks and cemeteries, on streets, on school grounds—in fact, plant memorial trees everywhere.

The people of America are ready for the planting of memorial trees—named trees. A little effort right now will cause action by individuals. W. J. R.

WORDS FROM THE LIPS OF WISE MEN

It is wise in all occurrences of life, but more especially in the domestic or matrimonial part of it, to preserve a disposition to be pleased.

The translators of the Bible were much fitter for that work than any we see in our present writings, owing to the simplicity that runs through the whole.

THE HELPING HAND

Do Not Inclose Stamps. Letters Will Not Be Answered Personally. No Attention Paid to Telephone Calls. No Names Are Published.

Wants Law Books

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a young man and study law evenings. If there is anyone of your many readers who has any law books of any description that they no longer have any use for and desire to give away, I would be very grateful for them.

G. E. L.

Will Get Dresses

Editor Helping Hand:

I have two cotton dresses and one black silk one, size about 34, one long linen coat, one white shirtwaist and three cotton dress skirts, all in good condition, that I would like to give away.

MRS. W. D. B.

ED. NOTE—Thank you. You will be put in touch with Mrs. E. K., who needs such clothes.

Suit for Boy

Editor Helping Hand:

I see in your column where a boy fourteen years old would like a suit of clothes. I am a poor woman and have five girls. I worked for a lady who sent me two coats and two pairs of knickers which I think would fit that boy, so I will gladly give them to him. I have no boys. MRS. C.

ED. NOTE—Thank you. "Tim" will be put in touch with you.

Offers Yarn

Editor Helping Hand:

I have quite an amount of yarn, whole and half balls and odd pieces, all shades. Perhaps someone could use it making rugs, etc. You are doing wonderful work. MRS. C. J.

ED. NOTE—Praise is sweet, but we must admit that we couldn't do a thing without the help of our readers. Your kind offer of yarn will be held for a few days while we find a good place for it.

Sends Six Dolls

Editor Helping Hand:

Your letter about the six little girls received. I am sending six dolls today, parcel post. There will be one for each, so they will all be happy. Pretty hard to select one, and have the rest disappointed. You are doing noble work. A little from everybody helps a great many. At our house we read the Helping Hand every night. M. W. C.

ED. NOTE—Great stuff! When you come to Boston sometime, better go out and meet those six happy little girls in the hospital. Or maybe we can get you a photo of them. You have done noble work.

Asks Doll for Sister

Editor Helping Hand:

As I was looking over your Helping Hand column, I read where D. M. has a doll to give away. If she would send it to my little sister I will pay charges on it. We are very poor and mother cannot afford to buy her one, as there are seven of us. My little sister, Margie, is four, and I am thirteen, and we have a little boy, two, and a baby a year old. If D. M. lives in Gloucester I will sift her ashes, or chop wood, or do errands for her to pay for the doll. RUSSELL.

ED. NOTE—And they call it a selfish world! D. M. lives in Somerville. She will be put in touch with you, and although you won't be able to sift ashes for her, I think she will be glad to hear from you.

Letter from Widow

Editor Helping Hand:

I would like very much to get the mourning hat offered by Mrs. G. S. My husband was killed five months ago, leaving me with four boys, ages three, six, nine and twelve. Anything for those would be more than welcome.

MRS. M. A.

ED. NOTE—You will be sent Mrs. G. S.'s address.

Box of Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

Would you please send me the address of Miss L. M., as I have a box of clothes, and also a suit, size 40, which I think she can use, and I have a box of clothes for a girl eight all packed.

MRS. H. I.

ED. NOTE—The address of Miss L. M., and of Mrs. A. V., who has a girl eight, will be sent you. Many thanks.

Sister Needs Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

I wonder if some kind reader of your column could have some old Spring clothes such as a coat or suit, size 38. I want some clothes for my sister, who has been in the hospital for the past two years suffering from rheumatism. She is getting along nicely now, and is allowed out for a walk, but the poor kid doesn't find much pleasure in that when she has nothing suitable to wear, and I can't afford to buy for her, as I have a family of my own and my husband isn't very strong. Any help will be greatly appreciated. R. A. C.

For Grace

Editor Helping Hand:

I have three dresses, two middies, two skirts and underclothing for a girl thirteen or fourteen. Also two pairs of white shoes, size 6½.

MRS. B. C.

ED. NOTE—Many thanks, Grace B., who asked for clothes of this size, will be put in touch with you.

For Large Family

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a box of clothes, rubbers, overshoes and shoes for a little girl of six, and lots of children's clothes, that I would be very pleased to give to anyone if they will call for it, as it is too large to send. MRS. S.

ED. NOTE—Thank you. You will be put in touch with Mrs. W. McD., who has a large family of girls.

Bundle of Pieces

Editor Helping Hand:

If you will kindly send me the address of Mrs. M. C., who wishes pieces for making mats, I have a bundle of pieces that I will gladly send. I am greatly in need of clothes for myself, size 38. I would greatly appreciate anything that was sent me.

WARE.

ED. NOTE—Mrs. M. C. has been supplied, so your kind offer will be held for replies.

A FEW THINGS THAT MILLIONAIRES CAN'T PURCHASE

By Herbert Kaufman

WILLIAM SHOEN, Pittsburgh steel man, bank director and social figure, decides that life isn't worth its pains and kills himself; ill health. The Gold cure isn't a remedy for ALL troubles.

Here, at least, was one man who'd rather be well than wealthy. Read about his companies and connections, then realize how much richer you probably are with a sound constitution and an unspent income of tomorrows.

Also read the story of Midas—there's the subtlest sermon ever delivered to greed and need.

Ancients muffed several apparent opportunities, but they could see shrewd truths without electric lights.

Expectation is the better part of value. Nothing ever seems worth quite so much after possession. Most of us have far more than what we envy.

If Asmodeus, the devil on two sticks, would lend you the eyes with which he pierces brick and stone you could behold unhappiness in mansions comparable to any misery in tenements.

Seventy-nine millionaires committed suicide in 1922. Money is dross in the purse of discontent.

The Umbrella Didn't Put Him There

Friends of the late Walter Page, rebuffed in an attempt to secure a Westminster Memorial, are pleased to deride the exclusiveness that denies honor to a distinguished Ambassador and confers celebrity upon the first Englishman to carry an umbrella.

Even at that, the gentleman showed originality, which can hardly be said for the titled nincompoops and wastrels under several adjacent monuments.

It happens, however, that Jonas Hanway was a person of considerable parts. The eighteenth century is mainly indebted to him for its slight knowledge of Persia and Russia, vague and mysterious regions, before he published his books of travel there in 1753.

Benevolence was also a novelty when Hanway settled in London and poured a fortune into the laps of the poor. He founded missions, established a chain of Sunday schools, endowed charities and rode to the abbey before a grateful, weeping train.

Folk who serve misfortune don't pity themselves to death. They have too many present reminders of worse tribulations than their own.

A little philanthropy might have stayed the hand of the seventy-nine millionaires who couldn't find any use for the rest of their lives.

Moscow Redesigns Our Flag

William Z. Foster, a later traveler in Russia, has not brought closer understanding with that country through HIS works. It is incredible that a born citizen of the United States can believe an imported formula will ever work revolution here.

Testimony at St. Joseph sounds like extracts from an Oppenheim thriller. Moscow would rescue the nation from capitalistic ruin by fire and sword. Justice will not reign until the Stars and Stripes change to a red banner in the blood of oppressors.

The statesmen who made such signal success of the Soviets now undertake to furnish plans and policies for the management of our ineffectual government.

Trotzky's orders cancel the Kansas industrial court law, draw constitutional amendments regulating the use of naval and military forces and prohibit farm mortgage foreclosures.

He wipes out the Ku Klux Klan and through his international patriot assures us that these and "similar demands" are just starting points—to prison from all indications.

Every Crook Pays Top Prices

William Liefer, a bellboy, grandly steps from a machine, languidly passes two trash-stuffed suitcases to a fellow guildsman, examines the floor chart, engages rooms and enjoys the comforts of the aristocratic Ambassador Hotel. For one week he signs checks for dinners, valet services, taxicabs and theatre tickets, and settles the bill with a penitentiary sentence. Before he leaves Sing Sing, Liefer will have performed enough hard labor to support a man in style and comfort for many weeks. But he won't draw wages for the work. Every cook pays top prices for his goods. Crime's a relentless usurer. Honesty has all the bargains.

The Bitter Fruits of Midnight

Gerald Chapman, recaptured and returned to Atlanta to finish a twenty-five-year term for stealing a million dollars from the mails, begins to be convinced on that point.

Time will likewise teach him tha. brains cunning enough to elude police forces in a wireless and Bertillon age are too clever to waste thought on illegal operations.

Dishonesty always finds a fool in the mirror.

So does infidelity. John K. Mitchell's remaining years will be heavy with ostracism and repentance. More millions suddenly become dross; the gardens of midnight yield strangely bitter fruits. Men who stand high fall proportionately. The great white way starts at a dance floor and ends at a swamp.

Watch the Ports—Plague Is Loose

Private advices from Constantinople disclose ten hundred and fifty-eight deaths from smallpox, typhus, pneumonia and kindred diseases among deportees from Anatolia. The information comes direct from responsible authorities. Why it has not appeared in the news is a matter for reflection.

Greece has no room for further returning nationals. Four more shiploads of exiles are en route to Turkey, which does not want them.

Secretary Davis is disturbed at the constant arrival of human contraband. Thousands of foreigners monthly evade watchfulness and secure entrance to America.

Such persons manifestly enter without examination. Plague-bearers may be slipping through the bars.

The superficial inspection of steerage passengers is of itself sufficiently disturbing. The potentialities of this last situation are inestimable.

Persons leaving foreign ports should be passed upon by United States physicians.

Above all, Federal medical staffs are required at Mediterranean points.

Common sense and community safety demand that obvious precaution. Here's one European question that DECIDEDLY concerns us.
